BUDGET CHIEF
CONCEALED DATA
ON DIXON-YATESHughes on Stand at Hearing Denies Charge, Says All
'Pertinent Information' Was Made Public.

WASHINGTON, June 27 (UP)—Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem., Tennessee), charged today that Budget Director Rowland R. Hughes "deliberately concealed important and material facts" connected with negotiation of the Dixon-Yates power contract.

Hughes denied it. He said he still stands on a previous statement that all "pertinent information" in the matter has been made public.

Kefauver made the charge at the opening of a hearing by his Senate Monopoly subcommittee where Hughes testified.

Hughes was questioned on the part played by Adolph H. Wenzel, Boston investment banker, in the power contract negotiations.

Dual Role Charged.

Kefauver said that "the facts show that Mr. Wenzel was at one and the same time acting" as an adviser of the Budget Bureau and a representative of his bank, the First Boston Corp., in the Dixon-Yates negotiations.

"These facts raise serious questions of possible conflict of interest in the transaction of important Government business," Kefauver said.

The Boston bank arranged for the Dixon-Yates group to get a loan from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. to finance a large part of the cost of building a steam power plant at West Memphis, Ark.

Kefauver said the decision of the Boston bank not to accept its usual fee in the transaction "amounts to a tacit admission" that Wenzel's dual role was "highly questionable."

He said his subcommittee wants to know why "important aspects," including Wenzel's part, in the Dixon-Yates negotiations were not included in the bureau's account of them which was made public at President Eisenhower's orders.

On another Dixon-Yates front, a Senate Appropriations subcommittee called a closed meeting to consider President Eisenhower's request for $6,500,000 to build a transmission line to carry the private power into Memphis.

House Action.

The House voted against TVA supporters and approved the appropriation. TVA supporters had wanted to use the $6,500,000 for a start on construction of a TVA steam power plant at Fulton, Tenn.

Since the House approval of the transmission line appropriation, the situation has been complicated by the Memphis City Commission's decision to build its own steam power plant. Memphis officials have said they will never use Dixon-Yates power.

"The action of the Memphis commission spikes any possible justification for the Dixon-Yates plant," Kefauver said. "I would think that, unless the Administration wants to further subsidize Dixon-Yates and throw away a lot of money, they would go ahead and cancel the contract."

Senator Albert Gore (Dem., Tennessee), said today "it would appear the city of Memphis has played the trump card" in a long battle aimed at blocking construction of the Dixon-Yates plant.

Gore and other TVA supporters said Memphis's decision to build its own electric plant, made last Thursday, would give them the ammunition they need to win a Senate showdown on the issue.

U.S. Bookies Forced to Abandon 'Layoff' Betting in Montreal

Police Shakeup Causes Network to Go Underground or Scatter — 49 Calls in Day From St. Louis Man.

By THEODORE C. LINK
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MONTREAL, June 27 (UP)—United States bookies, who transferred their multi-million dollar "layoff" betting business to Montreal several years ago following the Kefauver Senate Crime Committee hearings, have been forced to abandon their game again, as a result of a new administration and a shakeup in the police department.

The magnitude of the operation was illustrated by a Montreal police report showing that one man in the St. Louis area made 49 telephone calls to Montreal Dec. 31, 1954, placing bets on the Rose Bowl football game. There are reports that "layoff" operators have moved to a western province, or they may have gone underground temporarily. The network had taken over from big-time bookie operations in St. Louis, Chicago, Cincinnati and other centers in the United States, after those operators were forced to quit. The Canadian operation, conducted by telephone, reached into every state in the union until halted by police.

Two former St. Louisans were included in a police list of 25 United States citizens who drifted in here about three years ago, in connection with the growing gambling industry. They were Gilbert Beckley, a former handbook operator, and Tommy Whalen, gambler and hoodlum, who made a fortune in Wyoming and Utah oil strikes.

Beckley, who has a record of gambling arrests in St. Louis and St. Louis county, was involved directly in betting "clearing houses," police said. Whalen made occasional visits here, during which he called on gamblers, but the reasons for his visits were never made clear to authorities.

The large "clearing houses," which handled the "layoff" business here, were masked under such names as "Canadian Market Analyst Co.," "Seaway Construction Co.," "Ambro Corp." and others.

"Ambro Corp." is reported to have solicited by mail customers

THINKS LAWYERS SHOULD PASS TEST
IN SIMPLE ENGLISH

CHICAGO, June 27 (UP)—Prospective lawyers should pass a test in writing simple English and a series of questions in a legal office before they are admitted to the bar, the newly elected president of the Illinois Bar Association said today.

Thomas S. Edmonds, Chicago attorney, said Ninety-nine out of a hundred bills could not be simplified and made more readable but also could be materially shortened.

"Why call it 'The Last Will and Testament of John Doe,'" Edmonds asked. "Better make it simply 'Will of John Doe.'"

Edmonds suggests that the State Board of Law Examiners might start flunking candidates who cannot express themselves properly. Such action, he said, might encourage law colleges to require a better grounding in English.

VICAR ASKS BAR ON GIVING ABSURD
NAMES TO BABIES

BIRMINGHAM, England, June 27 (AP)—A couple had twin boys. They wanted one christened Peter and the other "Repeater."

Another couple had twin girls. They wanted one christened Kate and the other "Duplicate."

So says the Rev. John Jackson, vicar of St. John's church. In each case, he said today in a letter to his parishioners, he persuaded the parents to drop the idea.

The Rev. Mr. Jackson said he thinks the Church of England should lay down rules barring absurd names at baptisms and so prevent children going through life with a grudge "because of the labels tacked on their helpless heads."

PAIR MARRIED IN AIR, BRIDAL PARTY IN OTHER PLANES

SILVIS, Ill., June 27 (AP)—Armon Baney of East Moline and Glenda Kay Jordan of Silvis were married yesterday while circling 4000 feet above Silvis in the four-seater plane of the bride's father, Glenn Jordan, a restaurant operator.

Below the nuptial plane circled other aircraft containing the remainder of the bridal party. After the ceremony the party flew to Springfield for a wedding breakfast, then back to Silvis.

FAILS TO GET ANY VOTES

GRANARD, Ireland, June 27 (AP)—John McGovern, an independent candidate in Town Council elections held over the weekend, didn't get a single vote—not even his own.

"I voted for the other chap," he said. "I thought it was the decent thing to do."

An editorial in the Dublin Mail offered the consolation that perhaps his popularity was such that almost everyone thought he would win and no one bothered to vote for him.

Escaped Kangaroo Adds Bounce
To Baltimore Sunday Evening

BALTIMORE, June 27 (AP)—A mother kangaroo broke loose from her handlers after a television appearance and went bounding about the city for a full hour last night.

Once she heard the hood of an automobile with a beautiful leap. Everywhere she went traffic was disrupted. Children leaned goggle-eyed out of car windows. Women screamed.

Three attendants from the zoo, well past the age for sprinting, were joined by six policemen.

From the television station through the busy Malden avenue traffic went the chase. It was a zig-zag course through the Sunday traffic to Druid park drive.

Into a gully, down a street, through the woods, across the park, uphill, downhill, hop, hop...

After five miles of this, the mother kangaroo was finally cornered in a piece of undeveloped real estate.

Arthur Moore of the Baltimore zoo was kicked in the stomach and his colleague, Ben Geary, was bitten on the arm.

Finally the kangaroo was subdued. She was appearing on station WAAM's "This Is Your Zoo" show. Recently she kicked her baby out of the pouch and abandoned it to the care of human beings.

RUSSIA AND WEST
SAY U.N. SESSION
EASES WAY FOR
'SUMMIT' TALKS

Declaration at Close of San Francisco Meeting
Reaffirms Determination to Strive for Peace.

(Text of Declaration on Page 5A)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27 (AP)—Russia and the Western powers were agreed today that the United Nations' tenth anniversary session had been well worthwhile.

Both acknowledged that the week-long meetings had provided an excellent opportunity for diplomatic contacts and that the big power speeches had given each side a better understanding of what to expect at the summit talks in Geneva next month.

The anniversary session ended yesterday—just 10 years after the signing of the U.N. Charter—with a declaration by its president, Dr. Eelco N. Van Kleffens, reaffirming the determination of the 60 nations "to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war."

In a summation of the week-long activities, one that may be known as the "San Francisco Declaration," Van Kleffens said the U.N. member nations have reaffirmed their common determination to:

End war, rededicate themselves to the principles of the Charter, settle international disputes by peaceful means and work for a real disarmament plan.

Charter Is Guide.

"The difficulties before us are as evident as the dangers and disappointments of the past," the Dutch diplomat said, "but we have the Charter as our guide. The Charter, which prescribes that the United Nations shall be used as a center for harmonizing the actions of the member states."

The other speakers at the closing session, all presidents of the U.N. General Assembly, were Lester B. Pearson of Canada, Dr. Luis Padilla-Nerva of Mexico, Nasrallah Entezam of Iran, Gen. Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines, and Paul H. Spaak of Belgium.

The anniversary gathering had a few rough moments, when the president wielded the gavel and cautioned restraint, but behind-the-scenes relations between Russia and the Western powers were unusually cordial.

The Soviet Foreign Minister, V. M. Molotov, said in his rare news conference Saturday that the meeting had "achieved positive results in view of the various talks and contacts that have taken place."

Talks With Others.

In addition to a four-hour meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers, there were private talks between Molotov and each of the Big Western foreign ministers. His talks with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles were especially friendly and cordial.

These talks resulted in agreement on the procedural arrangements for the meeting of the Big Four chiefs of Government.

Leaving aside the sharp criticism that Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold had received a point request from the four asking permission to use the Palais des Nations, the U.N.'s European headquarters, for the meeting.

Observations on Geneva, which will be in Geneva at the time, will take personal charge of the arrangements.

Another indication of the new East-West relationship was Molotov's expression of regret for the Soviet attack on an American naval patrol plane in the Bering Strait June 22. Such a gesture from Russia is rare indeed, and it was welcomed by other diplomats as a move to eliminate a cause for friction on the eve of the Geneva talks.

Leaving aside the sharp criticism that Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold had received a point request from the four asking permission to use the Palais des Nations, the U.N.'s European headquarters, for the meeting.

On the basis of the speeches and private talks held here, this diplomat made the following observations about the Geneva talks:

1. The Western powers not only are in full agreement on the policies, but have fully informed other friendly countries, including all the Latin American republics.

2. The Soviet government is sure to bring up the question of Lebanon, which includes both the Formosan problem and Chinese representation in the U.N.

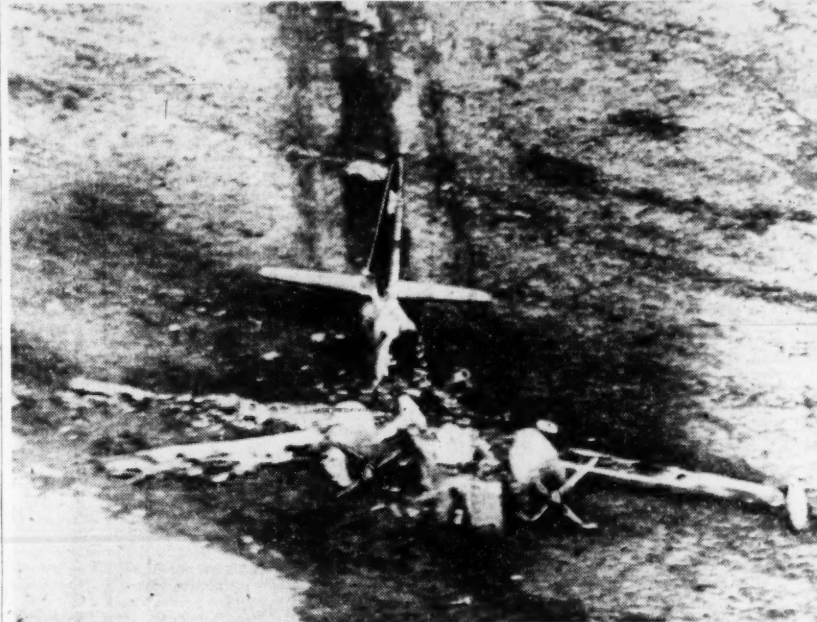

3. The West will try to limit the Geneva meeting to procedural problems, rather than seek solutions.

4. As far as the West is concerned, the first issue is disarmament. The Western position, however, still is under study.

5. The question of German unification and European security probably will be taken up together. There may be a decision at Geneva to set up a working group of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the new Communist security organization to see if anything can be done to reassure Russia on German unification.

TITO ACCEPTS BID TO VISIT MOSCOW,
RADIO REPORTSBelgrade Announcement Made After Conclusion of Talks With Western Big Three.

BELGRADE, June 27 (AP)—The Belgrade radio said today President Josip (Tito) Broz had accepted an invitation to visit Moscow.

The invitation was said to have been extended during the visit here several weeks ago of Soviet Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev and Russian Premier Bulganin.

There was no immediate information when Tito planned to go to Moscow.

The announcement was made soon after a conclusion of a conference of the Big Three Western powers and Yugoslavia on international questions.

The communiqué said the United States, Britain and France had reached a wide measure of agreement on international issues and stressed the need for a strong and independent Yugoslavia.

The communiqué, issued after three days of conferences on the ambassadorial level, pledged continued co-operation among the four nations.

It said the exchange of views confirmed "the wide measure of agreement" between the four nations in their approach to the various international questions under review.

Ambassador James W. Riddleberger represented the United States. Sir Frank Roberts was on hand for Britain and Francois Couët for France.

The communiqué said the exchange of views took place in "an atmosphere of cordiality and mutual confidence." It stressed that solution of outstanding problems should be sought by peaceful means and by negotiations. Based on "full respect for and recognition of the right of all nations to independence, equality, self-defense and collective security in conformity with the charter of the U.N."

The communiqué said the four governments consider fruitful the co-operation developed in all fields of the Balkan alliance as an "important contribution to peace."

The Balkan alliance links Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey in political, military, economic and cultural co-operation. Greece and Turkey are members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, while Yugoslavia is not.

The communiqué did not mention the policy of "active coexistence" which the four governments have agreed to develop in the international situation and stressed the significance of their talks, because "they believe that this method of exchange of views can help to promote an even closer understanding between themselves" and "can also contribute to a further improvement in the general international situation and to world peace."

WARSHIP RUSHING TO FLYERS ADRIFT
TWO DAYS ON RAFT

YOKOSUKA, Japan, June 27 (UP)—Three United States destroyers rushed today to the rescue of two Marine airmen who survived two days in an open raft after their jet fighter crashed at sea south of Tokyo.

A United States Navy spokesman here said Air Force planes picked up a faint radio signal from the flyers saying they had seen flames fall and heard the roar of engines.

He said the message from the two men, who crashed in an F-30 Sky Knight Saturday, gave no details of their condition.

The spokesman said Air Force planes had dropped flares in the area where earlier a liferaft had been sighted.

The names of the two Marines were withheld.

POLICE TURN DOWN
OFFER OF WOMAN
CARRYING $243,150

CHICAGO, June 27 (UP)—Police today revealed the story of the woman who carried $243,150 who made an illegal turn.

Policeman Edwin Lukaszewski flagged down the woman when he saw her make the wrong turn. She demanded to see his commanding officer.

The policeman said there police discovered that the woman was carrying three envelopes containing $243,150 in $1000, $500, $100, $50 and $20 bills.

"She said she was carrying the money earned by her husband, because she had some business deals coming up," Park Police Chief George Otletwis said.

In the next breath, Otletwis reported, the woman said "I was away at $25,000 a year," and offered an officer $10,000 as an advance.

At this point, the police summoned the woman's brother and attorney. They took her away and the money was carted off in an armored car. The woman's name was not revealed.

GIRL RIDES SINGLE WATER SKI FROM MIAMI TO NASSAU

NASSAU, Bahamas, June 27 (AP)—A 22-year-old girl rode a single water ski 200 miles from Miami to here yesterday in 10 hours and 25 minutes.

Delores Kippie, a performer in the stunt just to see if it could be done, gasped, "I'm so glad to see Nassau." She rode behind a tow-boat on a regulation water ski that had been equipped with two foot sockets. Seas were choppy all the way.

Miss Kippie's legs were greased in bacon fat and she wore a black bathing suit and a coral cap.

She was given a few sips of brandy and put to bed to recover from the trip across the Gulf Stream.

Miss Kippie, formerly of Akron, O., had been training for months.

The feat, never before attempted on one ski, has been performed twice on two skis.

RUSSIANS SAID TO BE PILOTING
MIGS OFF MATSUJets Down Nationalist Patrol Plane and Airliner Carrying U.S.
Army Doctor.

TAIPEI, Formosa, June 27 (UP)—Red Chinese MIG jet fighters, which the Nationalist Chinese air force said were piloted by Russians, today shot down a Nationalist jet patrol plane and raked a commercial airliner with machine-gun fire.

The airliner, carrying United States Army medical officer Lt. John J. Goodrich of Rayne, La., on a mercy mission to Matsu island, landed at Nationalist-held White Dog island, near Matsu island, and waited until dark to return to Formosa under Chinese Nationalist escort.

The pilot of the downed Nationalist jet was killed, but neither Lt. Goodrich nor any of the four-man crew of the chartered Fooshing Airlines amphibian was injured.

The plane, a converted PB4 patrol bomber, was to have removed an unidentified, ailing sergeant from Matsu island for treatment on Formosa.

The Nationalist air force said that intercepted radio conversations during the two attacks showed that the eight attacking MIGs were manned by Russians. Orders from ground radio also were given in Russian, the Nationalist air force said. Nationalist sources said recent intelligence reports also had indicated that the Red Chinese air force is run by the Russians.

The PB4 pilot, Chin Quock Ming, a Chinese-American who lived in Hartford, Conn., for 10 years, said the MIGs made four passes at his plane, firing each time.

"There was a big red star on each of the planes," the pilot said in telling of the attack. "I saved the plane by slowing down to almost stalling speed and hugging the wave-tops."

The airliner had many holes in its left wing.

The patrol plane shot down by the Reds was a T-33 jet. It crashed into the sea and the pilot was lost, the Nationalists announced.

The MIGs attacked two T-33 patrol planes after shooting up the airliner, which was under charter to the United States Military Assistance Advisory Group. The Nationalist planes did not return the Red fire.

It was the first appearance of the Red jet fighters over Matsu, only 120 miles northwest of Formosa.

Fooshing Airlines operates between Formosa and Hong Kong. It uses amphibian planes on trips to the offshore islands of Matsu, Quemoy and White Dog.

In a footnote to its text of Molotov's memorandum, the State Department said Dulles agreed "mistakes" were possible but added that "the United States was satisfied that in this case there was no possibility of error."

Rumor of Naval Convoy

At Baltimore, Col. Ullus Amoss, former OSS officer now heading a private spy network, said last night his agents had information that the American plane was shot down because a big Red naval fleet was in the area and feared detection.

Amoss said in a radio-television broadcast that "a massive Red naval convoy is passing along the Red's northern sea route and for the purpose of air pressure from an explosion 2400 feet below the surface in the Nordstern diggings in the Ruhr."

He said it was enroute between Murmansk and Vladivostok.

Defense Department Denies U.S. Aircraft
Shot Back at MIG-
Type Attackers Over Bering Sea.

WASHINGTON, June 27 (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will fly to Maine this afternoon to meet President Eisenhower and confer on the latest United States-Russian plane incident.

The Secretary planned to fly to the Dow Air Force Base at Bangor, Me., a State Department spokesman said. Mr. Eisenhower is scheduled to return to the Capital by plane tonight.

The President and Dulles then will have more time during the return flight to discuss the shooting down of an American Navy plane by Russian MIGs last Wednesday off Alaska.

Russia claims that its plane exchanged shots with the Neptune plane during the incident. The Defense Department said the American plane did not return the fire after it was attacked.

Soviet Version Disclosed.

The Soviet version of the plane incident was disclosed yesterday when the State Department made public a text of the memorandum handed Dulles in San Francisco Saturday by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

While admitting the incident could have been due to "a mistake," Molotov said Russia did not rule out the possibility it was "a result of the action of some representatives of the American command who are not interested in the prevention of this sort of incident."

But Molotov expressed "regret in regard to the incident" and offered to pay half of the damages. There was no loss of life but seven of the 11 crew members aboard the Neptune patrol plane were injured, three by shell fragments.

Dulles said he was "gratified" that the Soviet memorandum "expressed some regret, although it was not what we asked for."

Most "diplomatic officials," joined by some members of Congress, tended to "blame" the "isolated incident" that would have no bearing on the forthcoming Big Four conference.

Molotov Note.

Contrary to the American version, the Molotov note said "concrete Soviet authorities" had determined that the plane "violated the state frontiers of the Soviet Union in the region of the Bering straits, north of Cape Chocoma (Chukotka)." It continued:

"On the approach of the Soviet fighters which were proceeding to it for the purpose of pointing out that it was within the limitation of the frontiers of the U.S.S.R. and to propose that it immediately leave the airspace of the Soviet Union, there took place an exchange of shots between the American and Soviet aircraft."

The commander of the patrol bomber, Lt. Richard H. Fischer of Pittsburgh, had said the MIGs came in so fast and unexpectedly that there was not time to return the Red fire. American planes have standing orders to shoot back if attacked.

Molotov said Dulles told him Friday that "the American aircraft had not violated Soviet territorial waters, although you recognized that under the modern speeds of aircraft a certain deviation of an aircraft was possible."

In a footnote to its text of Molotov's memorandum, the State Department said Dulles agreed "mistakes" were possible but added that "the United States was satisfied that in this case there was no possibility of error."

Youngsters' Snow Cone Business
Booms---They Use Mom's Liqueurs

NEW ORLEANS, June 27 (AP)—Business was snowballing at the snowball stand Mrs. Paul Spurlock's children set up outside her house. Several male customers were wading into the icy confection and several more were clamoring for service.

Mrs. Spurlock went to investigate. She found the children had disassembled the conventional fruit syrups and were spiking the snowballs, sometimes called snow cones, with two bottles of her best liqueurs.

The snowball business melted away after she rescued the remaining half bottle.

SENATE VOTES BIPARTISAN STUDY OF GOVERNMENT SECURITY SETUP

Administration, Publicly Lukewarm Over Measure, Is Reported to Have Decided to Accept It.

WASHINGTON, June 27 (AP)—The Senate today approved a special presidential commission to study all aspects of the controversial federal security program.

Passage followed an expression of hopes from Democrats and Republicans that the proposed 12-member bipartisan commission would operate in a dispassionate, nonpartisan atmosphere.

Senator Humphrey (Dem., Minnesota), co-author with Senator Stennis (Dem., Mississippi) of the commission plan, said the question of security is an issue in last fall's general election, is not a partisan issue.

He called for a "fresh and objective" study and declared the present program is "an unfortunate state of confusion."

Senator Cotton (Rep., New Hampshire), a member of the Government operations committee which approved the legislation, called for a "most dispassionate" review of the security program, but at the same time praised President Eisenhower's handling of the problem.

A companion measure already has won House committee endorsement and approval is expected there.

The Eisenhower Administration, which publicly has been lukewarm to the proposal, was reported over the week end to have decided to accept it.

3-Point Plan.

1. Set up a 12-member commission, four to be named by the President, four by the Vice President and four by the Speaker of the House, with a 6-to-6 balance between Republicans and Democrats.

2. Instruct the commission to study the "entire security program, including various statutes, presidential orders and administrative regulations and directives" bearing on it, as well as to look into the protection of defense secrets, the safety of public and private defense installations, the adequacy of sabotage laws and like matters.

3. Order a report by Dec. 31, 1956, on whether the "existing requirements, practices and procedures" of these programs are in accordance with a policy of adequate protection of national security and preservation of "basic American rights."

The United Press reported the House today passed and sent to the Senate a bill to authorize $2,369,000,000 in construction of military bases around the world.

The measure includes a new $50,000,000 Central Intelligence Agency headquarters in the Washington area.

Most of the funds—$1,279,000,000—go for bases in the United States, $636,498,000 for bases abroad, $375,335,000 for secret locations, and $21,000,000 for emergency projects.

Biggest slice—$1,165,433,000—is for the Air Force, more than a third for overseas. The Army gets $551,103,000 and the Navy $596,140,000.

Social Security Bill.

The chances for early action on Democratic-sponsored changes in the social security system were dimmed yesterday by an announcement by Chairman Harry F. Byrd (Dem., Virginia) that the Senate Finance Committee would insist on full hearings.

Byrd said the finance committee "isn't going to act hastily" on the proposals to expand benefits for older women and disabled persons. With Congress aiming for a July 30 adjournment, full hearings might result in delaying Senate action on social security changes until next year.

Byrd announced today he would ask that top naval officials be called to explain why the Navy still is building conventional submarines and not going all-out on atomic-powered undersea craft.

He said he was disappointed the $2-billion-dollar defense appropriation bill carried funds for only five new atomic submarines while also providing for four of the conventional type.

The bill has been passed by both the House and Senate, but in somewhat different forms which must be adjusted.

Meanwhile Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem., Washington), a member both of the armed services group and the Senate House Atomic Energy Committee, predicted in a separate interview that Russia soon will be launching atomic-driven submarines of its own.

Negro leaders urged Congress today to override the President's objections and force an end to segregation in the state National Guard units taking part in the proposed federal reserve program.

The Senate Internal Security subcommittee is investigating charges that a former Communist espionage agent masked his activities behind credentials as a United States foreign correspondent.

The subcommittee, headed by Senator James O. Eastland (Dem., Mississippi), told of the inquiry but declined to give further details. Witnesses are being subpoenaed for a public hearing Wednesday.

WOMEN, PEN PALS NEARLY 40 YEARS, MEET FIRST TIME

NEW YORK, June 27 (INS)—Two women who have been pen pals for almost 40 years met for the first time in New York yesterday.

Mrs. Paul Schoendienst of St. Louis and Mrs. Mary Burkland of Mount Vernon, N.Y., began their correspondence in a strange manner.

In 1916 when Mrs. Schoendienst lived in Avon, Ill., she had a job in a general store. One of her jobs was candle making.

Occasionally, she would pencil her name "Alvina Thome, Avon, Ill., on an egg. One day an egg bearing her name turned up in New York and it was given to Mary Conlin, who was Mrs. Burkland's sister.

That year Mary Conlin sent the "Alvina Thome, Avon, Ill." card and that was the beginning of their long friendship.

When the bus pulled into New York one hour into yesterday morning, Mrs. Burkland was patiently waiting for her pen pal.

Mrs. Schoendienst, who now lives at 4822 Allania street in St. Louis, was quoted as saying:

"It's a wonderful experience. I'm thrilled!"

Mrs. Schoendienst plans to stay 10 days in New York.

ATLANTIC GREYHOUND BUS STRIKE ACCORD REACHED

CHARLESTON, W.Va., June 27 (AP)—A contract was signed early today by company and union negotiators after they reached an oral agreement in the 10-state Atlantic Greyhound bus strike.

Federal conciliator Joseph Wright said the contract was drawn up and signed as an "expedient" so negotiating committee members would not be required to return today.

He said the contract now must be ratified by the membership of the AFL Motor Coach Employees Union whose 724 bus drivers went on strike April 6.

13 BODIES TAKEN FROM RAISED BRITISH SUBMARINE

PORTLAND, England, June 27 (AP)—Salvage workers yesterday recovered the bodies of 13 seamen who went down with the submarine Siden 11 days ago in Portland harbor after an explosion.

Engineers said the Siden could be made shipshape again. The submarine has been raised and towed onto the beach.

tax relief" will be possible for the 50,000,000 taxpayers.

He said Congress should not approve proposals that 10,000 self-employed persons be given tax relief on savings to help them build up retirement funds.

Humphrey said the treasury is "sympathetic" to the proposals, but at this time they should not be approved.

Humphrey was the first witness as the committee opened two days of hearings on a bill to grant tax benefits to self-employed persons and all other workers not covered by company pension plans.

The measure would allow such persons to escape taxes on up to 10 per cent of their income or $7500 a year, whichever is smaller, by putting it into a retirement fund. The taxes on the fund and its earnings would not have to be paid until withdrawal at age 65.

NEHRU SAYS HE DIDN'T SEE IRON CURTAIN ON TOUR

VIENNA, June 27 (UP)—Indian Prime Minister Nehru said today he "saw no Iron Curtain" on his travels in Russia and its satellites.

He said a new drive for peaceful co-existence between East and West is needed, because world statesmen have proved incompetent to settle global problems by military means.

Nehru, at a press conference, ducked all questions by reporters relating to Russia's oppression of its satellites and about Red slave labor camps.

"Always hate evil," Nehru said, "but not the evil door. Try to win him over."

"Co-existence is the only alternative to war in the atomic age."

Nehru winced when he was asked for an account of his trip behind the Iron Curtain.

"I didn't notice any Iron Curtain," he said.

MOLOTOV BOOED AS HE GETS OFF TRAIN IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, June 27 (UP)—Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov returned to Chicago for another tour today and this time he was greeted with boos as he got off his train.

On June 16 he had toured the city unharmed, but this time a crowd was awaiting him at the station. He and his group were returning eastward from the United Nations conference in San Francisco.

As they emerged with a police escort into the main part of the station, a few persons in the crowd clapped their hands. They were promptly drowned out by boos.

The Soviet party, escorted by police cars with sirens screaming, then took off for the Museum of Science and Industry for luncheon and a tour.

POLICE PLANNING TO QUESTION 70 LISTED IN KOENIG PHONE NOTEBOOK

Suspended Jockey Says Gambler Who Was Barred From Track Paid Riding Fee in Race He Won.

Plans to question more than 70 persons whose names appear in a telephone notebook kept by J. Fred Koenig, murdered East St. Louis race track figure and racing information operator, were announced today by St. Clair county authorities in their search for clues to the murder.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Clifford Flood told reporters the notebook, seized when Koenig was arrested in an East St. Louis gambling raid a year ago, contains 85 names and telephone numbers. Seventy-nine names are in the St. Louis area, the remainder are Chicago numbers. With several exceptions, only first names are listed, leading authorities to seek the assistance of the telephone company in obtaining full names and addresses of the individuals they hope to question.

Koenig was last seen alive last Monday night at the Red Rooster, a roadhouse near Fairmount Race Track operated by a close associate of Frank (Buster) Wortman. His body, with bullet wounds in the chest and head, was found in the trunk of his automobile on East St. Louis street last Wednesday.

Brinkley Returns Voluntarily. Flood yesterday questioned Bruce Brinkley, one of the leading Fairmount track jockeys, who returned to East St. Louis voluntarily from his home in Elk City, Okla., after he was informed that authorities were anxious to learn if he could throw light on the killing.

Brinkley, who went to Oklahoma last week after receiving a 10-day suspension for rough riding, told Flood that Koenig paid him a $40 jockey fee for winning the eighth race on June 16 with Poltroon, despite the fact Koenig had been barred from Fairmount by track authorities.

The jockey added he expected a larger fee, although $40 is the usual compensation. Track records show that Poltroon and two other horses, Honey Bear and Attract, formerly owned by Koenig and his wife, Grace, are registered under the name of Gladys Kosloff of St. Louis.

Jockey Brinkley's statement, Flood said, indicates that Koenig either still owned Poltroon, or was acting as Mrs. Kosloff's agent. Brinkley also told Flood that Koenig held his riding contract at Fairmount track. The track record lists Brinkley as under contract to Mrs. Kosloff, the Post-Dispatch learned.

Koenig and Ray Amlung, a horse trainer, are reported to have met Mrs. Kosloff and a man companion at a north St. Louis tavern Monday afternoon. Amlung told police he received $2000 from Mrs. Kosloff as payment for horses he had sold her. Koenig left the tavern about 3:30 p.m., the trainer added.

Primo Caudera Picked Up. Primo F. Caudera, an associate of Koenig, was apprehended today at his Brentwood home by Capt. Phil K. Moeller, head of the sheriff's gambling squad, and taken to Clayton for questioning. Caudera, who is under a gambling charge in the county as a result of a raid by Capt. Moeller in Maplewood last October, declared he had not seen Koenig in three weeks.

Caudera, a bartender, said he had not been in business with Koenig, and could not enlighten authorities as to a man that he would voluntarily submit to questioning by East St. Louis police. Capt. Moeller released him after an hour's conference.

A conference to pinpoint responsibility for law-enforcement was held today at the office of State's Attorney Richard T. Carter, at Belleville. Carter said the Koenig murder and the pistol fire directed last month at Birney T. (Chick) Hovey Jr. and Kenneth Mueller, associates of Koenig, were responsible for the conference.

Following a two-hour conference, Carter told reporters there

Law Enforcers Discuss Upsurge of Crime on East Side

had been "an exchange of ideas and an agreement on co-operation."

The State's Attorney said the law-enforcement officers had discussed "a series of events, including the Koenig murder." He expressed the belief that "something will be accomplished."

Attending the conference were James Christensen, superintendent of the Illinois Bureau of Criminal Identification, and Sheriff Leonard O. Reinhardt of St. Clair county.

Also present were Wetzell Dobson of Belleville, Maj. James Thompson, head of the St. Louis police gambling squad, and Sheriff Virgil J. Baltezor, acting night chief of police of East St. Louis.

Set Up Racing Service. Details of Koenig's racing news service were told in the Post-Dispatch yesterday. Koenig and his wife rented an apartment at 601 North Fortieth street, East St. Louis, early last year. He began a racing information service to bookmakers, by telephone, and was reported to have earned $400 a week until last April, when gangsters moved in on him and ordered him to cease operations.

Jockey Brinkley, who visited the apartment, told Flood that four telephones were in service "and were going all the time" when the information service was at its peak.

Koenig was to get some sort of job with the hoodlum group that took over his business, but the job did not materialize, friends related. Pressed for money, he complained of having received a "raw deal," and was quoted as having asserted that he was going to the Red Rooster last Monday night to "get even."

Mrs. Koenig has told authorities her husband left her in the bar while he went to the washroom, and did not see him again. However, other witnesses said Koenig returned to the bar and left by the front door, remarking he was "going out to see someone."

His add-on automobile, in which his body later was found, disappeared from the roadhouse parking lot.

The inquest in Koenig's death will open Thursday afternoon at East St. Louis police headquarters.

The telephone notebook seized June 12, 1954, in a raid on a handbook in the 1700 block of Gaty avenue, East St. Louis, has been held as evidence in a gambling case against Koenig. Flood said the names in the book obviously were those of persons, who dealt with Koenig as bettors, or as recipients of racing information. Some names and numbers are those of known bookmakers, Flood stated.

Three on List Comment. Only three of the persons whose names were in Koenig's notebook could be reached by the Post-Dispatch today.

John A. Kotvicki, 8637 Partidge avenue, who described himself as "a former real estate operator, now a speculator," said: "I played golf with Koenig, and occasionally had a drink with him. I saw him at Fairmount track. I never played a bet with him, and thought he was still in the saloon business. I last saw him at Fairmount last year."

The proprietor of a cafe in the 5400 block of Walsh street said a former customer, who frequently had racing scratch sheets in his possession, spoke with a man whom he called "Fred," over the telephone from the tavern. The telephone number of the cafe appeared in a notebook of Koenig's.

Charles Klach, operator of a tavern bearing his name at Clark avenue and Twenty-first street who was listed in the notebook, told a reporter he met Koenig about six weeks ago through Caudera during a "social evening" at the Terrace Lounge in East St. Louis. Klach said Koenig was in good spirits, made no complaints and spoke of a recent "good time" at the races in Hot Springs, Ark. The Terrace Lounge is operated by Wortman.

FINED $75 ON CHARGE OF DRIVING WHEN DRUNK

Coleman Mosco, 5883 Enright avenue, was found guilty of driving when intoxicated and fined $75 by Police Judge Morris Rosenthal today. His driver's license was suspended for 90 days. Patrolman Aso Fears, Tenth district, testified he saw Mosco walking unsteadily along the sidewalk in the 1500 block of Whittier street, get into an automobile and drive away. He then arrested him.

Mosco, a Negro, testified he was not intoxicated and had had only two beers.

OSCAR THE OCELOT BEING TRAINED FOR LECTURE CIRCUIT

Oscar, a miserable failure as a household pet, is turning to a vocation where much success has been. He is being groomed for the lecture circuit.

Oscar is an ocelot. An ocelot is a member of the cat family, which somewhat resembles a pinto-sized leopard. Oscar's disposition, like a leopard's, is something few persons are anxious to probe too closely. He has sharp teeth, and his claws have certain razor-like qualities.

His former owner, of whom Oscar was not particularly fond, gave him to the Humane Society a week ago. The society said today it had turned the animal over to Charles M. Bindner Jr., a volunteer Boy Scout junior counselor, who hopes to use Oscar in nature lectures.

Society officers are convinced that Bindner will give the ocelot proper treatment — and armistice respect.

MONSANTO CO. GIVEN 5-YEAR AMORTIZATION OF PLANT

The Monsanto Chemical Co. will be allowed to amortize 45 per cent of $8,275,000 in construction costs for the production of methanol at Texas City, Tex., over a five-year period, according to a Government announcement in Washington yesterday.

Tax benefits, allowing a rapid write-off of that part of construction costs of projects deemed essential to national defense, were announced for 53 industrial expansion projects totaling $64,831,648. The usual amortization period is 20 to 25 years.

Yesterday's authorizations brought the total of projects approved since 1950 to 19,933 with an estimated cost of $30,424,000,000. Of this amount, an average 60 per cent has been allowed for tax benefits.

The State Health Division specifically recommended against giving children a first Salk vaccine injection, but pointed out that almost all pupils have already had their first inoculation.

Dr. Belden said the decision in favor of giving the second injection was in harmony with the views of the Council of the Missouri Medical Association, which met in St. Louis yesterday with Dr. James R. Amos, State Health Commissioner.

Some groups, including a committee of the American Academy of Pediatrics, have opposed the use of the vaccine for the time being. No vaccine has been available in this area since April, when most first- and second-grade pupils received their first shots.

WOMAN SITTING ON PORCH WOUNDED BY STRAY BULLET

Mrs. Delphia Karniski, Busen road, near Koch Hospital, was shot in the leg yesterday when sitting on the front porch of her home, St. Louis County deputy sheriffs reported.

Mrs. Karniski, 52 years old, was treated at Koch Hospital.

Three boys, 14, 15 and 16 years old, who had been engaged in target practice nearby, were arrested and turned over to St. Louis County juvenile authorities. They gave addresses in the 4400 block of West Pine boulevard.

YOUTH KILLED, COMPANION HURT WHEN AUTO OVERTURNS

A 17-year-old Grantfork (Ill.) youth was killed and a boy, 15, seriously injured early yesterday when an automobile in which they were riding left the pavement and turned over on U.S. Highway 40.

Dead was Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cataveit, who was driving. Jack Dresch, son of Mrs. Leto Reinacher, also of Grantfork, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, Highland, with shoulder and other injuries. Grantfork is six miles north of Highland.

Frank John Sowul, 66, 1008 North Thirteenth street, East St. Louis, suffered fractures of the leg, collarbone and ribs last night when struck by an automobile driven by Elmer Jones of Edwardsville as he tried to cross the street in the 1300 block of North Ninth street, East St. Louis. Sowul was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis.

STORE-OWNER KNOCKED DOWN BY ROBBER BUT SAVES $800

Forrest Oerter, proprietor of a Ben Franklin department store at 8204 North Broadway, prevented a robber from taking about $800 from him late Saturday night by holding on to two money bags when the man, a Negro, tried to grab them after knocking him down.

Oerter told police he had closed the store and was crossing the street on the way to the Baden Bank of St. Louis, 8217 North Broadway, when the assailant struck him in the stomach and knocked him down.

Oerter called for help and the man fled. A uniformed policeman was near, and he fired three shots at the frustrated robber.

Adm. Burke in Saigon. SAIGON, South Viet Nam, June 27 (AP)—R. Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, new chief of United States naval operations, arrived here today on a one-day visit.

ALDERMEN VOTE EXPRESSWAY CONTRACT BILL

Authorization Measure Applies to Western End of Mark Twain Roadway.

A bill authorizing St. Louis to enter into a contract with the State Highway Department for construction of the western end of the Mark Twain expressway within the city limits was passed today by the Board of Aldermen under suspension of the rules. The vote was 23 to 1.

Under provisions of the measure, the city will pay half the cost of obtaining right-of-way for the highway and the cost of relocating public utilities which must be moved. That portion of the expressway involved extends from Woodland and Saloma avenues to a point east of Davison avenue, a distance of 12 blocks.

The only alderman who opposed the measure was Everett J. Taylor (Dem.). Twenty-seventh Ward, who said the people living in the vicinity of the route of the proposed roadway are opposed to it.

Another measure passed by the aldermen by a vote of 20 to 4 would give nine employees in the parole office of the Circuit Court for Criminal Causes small additional salary increases.

It was opposed by Board President Donald Gunn, who pointed out that the city's Board of Estimate and Apportionment previously had given these employees salary increases to make their incomes commensurate with those of employees in other city offices. The bill would result in $1920 additional payroll costs annually.

Action on a bill to authorize the Board of Public Service to let contracts to construct and equip the proposed new underground central fire and police telegraph headquarters in Forest Park was postponed until tomorrow when the aldermen will meet at 11 a.m.

On motion of Alderman A. J. Ward, chairman of the aldermanic traffic committee, the board reconsidered a bill passed last Friday and sent it back to Cervantes' committee for further consideration.

Cervantes said he plans to hold a public hearing on the bill, which would require that exhaust pipes on diesel-powered busses and trucks extend at least six inches above the roof line of the vehicle.

CRUISER STARTED IN HOME GARAGE TAKES TO WATER

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

A 28-foot steel-hull cruiser, which Leo Heigl started building in his garage two years ago and finished at the East Grand Boatyard, was launched with fitting colors yesterday at the boatyard at the foot of East Grand avenue.

On hand for the launching were his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Paul Drier and Sharon, 16 years old, who provided moral support for the amateur boatwright.

The sleek vessel, with sleeping quarters for four persons, was christened the U-Bang-E-Heigl, an automobile agent, foreman, said materials cost about $4000. The time, he says, was well spent.

MATTINGLY BLOC
WINS REPUBLICAN

President decides to seek re-election.

This, of course, probably would have been the case regardless of the outcome of yesterday's battle for control of the state organization.

But if Mr. Eisenhower should decide to retire to his Pennsylvania farm, Mattingly would be in a strong position to control the election of Missouri delegates, who would support for the nomination, a man favored by the Eisenhower group.

By having a greater voice in awarding federal political plums in Missouri, Mattingly will be better able to deliver Missouri's delegation next year, just as he did for former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York in 1948, and as he helped to do for Mr. Eisenhower in 1952.

Special Group Named.
Under the resolution adopted yesterday, a special seven-man patronage committee was set up to pass on federal appointments which are submitted in a disagreement between Compton, Welsh and Mrs. Tanner.

Members of the special group would be Compton, Welsh, Mrs. Tanner, Roscoe C. Hobbs of St. Louis, chairman of the Republican State Finance Committee, William G. Moore Jr. of St. Louis, state committee treasurer; Miss Anne Richards of Brookfield, vice chairman, and Miss Harriet Combs of Kansas City, secretary.

Under the present system, recommendations for federal appointments in Missouri are forwarded to the Republican national committee in Washington, but they are not effective until Compton, Welsh and Mrs. Tanner all agree.

The failure of any of the three to endorse the applicant means that the appointment fails. Compton has charged that Welsh and Mrs. Tanner have "vetoed" a number of appointments by refusing to act one way or the other.

New Rules Outlined.
Under the new system, if the state chairman or the national committee members fail to submit written objections within 10 days, the appointment will be made. If one of the three files an objection, the matter is referred to the special patronage committee for decision.

The Welsh supporters have pointed out that Compton can block any appointments favored by Welsh and Mrs. Tanner by objecting to their recommendations and forcing them into the patronage group, which reportedly is dominated by Mattingly-Compton supporters.

Appointments to postmaster and rural mail delivery jobs comprise the bulk of the federal patronage to be filled in Missouri, although other positions become vacant from time to time through deaths or resignations. The new patronage system will apply to all jobs except postal positions in the Second and Seventh districts, which will be handled by the incumbent G.O.P. congressmen, Thomas B. Curtis of Webster Groves, Second district, and Dewey Short of Galena, Seventh.

Hoping for More Funds.

The victorious state Republican leaders are hopeful that the flow of party contributions will be stimulated by yesterday's action. They believe this is more than likely because G.O.P. financial supporters will have a voice in patronage matters with Hobbs and Moore on the special committee.

Mattingly, former state chairman and former national committeeman, won yesterday despite the fact he had meager support from his home grounds. Only three of the 12 state committee members from St. Louis and St. Louis county supported the resolution, while nine remained loyal to Welsh and voted against it.

It was reported that the St. Louis area committee members who voted against the resolution, either in person or by proxy, were Harry Stoffer, Mrs. Josephine Nieters, Clifford C. Bauman, Walter Lowe, Mrs. Louise Zimmerman and Mrs. Edna Anderson, all of St. Louis, and Erwin F. Vetter, C. Wheeler Detjen and Miss Alice Maher of St. Louis county.

However, members from five outstate congressional districts and one in Kansas City voted solidly for the resolution. The Sixth district (St. Joseph area) voted 3 to 1 against the resolution and the Fifth district (Kansas City) voted 3 to 1 for it.

Called "Rebirth of Party."

Mattingly hailed the action as the "rebirth" of the Republican party in Missouri.

"This will lead to party harmony," he declared. "It has cleared the air and demonstrated that the party is 100 per cent for the re-nomination of President Eisenhower next year."

Welsh and Mrs. Tanner had little to say following their defeat. Both indicated they may not accept the state committee's action. Welsh refused to say whether he would appeal to the Republican National Committee.

"I was elected national committeeman for Missouri and I will do the best job I can for the party and to help elect Dwight Eisenhower in 1956," Welsh said.

Mrs. Tanner said she intended to continue acting on recommendations submitted by local Republican committees.

LAYOUT BETTING BUSINESS FORCED OUT OF MONTREAL

of C. J. Rich &amp; Co., former nation-wide handbook business operating in St. Louis county until raided in 1950. Associated in Rich &amp; Co. were Charles J. Kewpie, Rich, Sidney Wymore, Ralph Leon and Edward B. Fischer. Police reported that Ambro customers were asked to post any amount over $100 with the "clearing house," and then bet against the account, using telephone or mail.

New Locations Found.

Until authorities caught up with them, in the last six months, the gambling clearing houses, occupied quarters in downtown Montreal. Following raids, they moved to the suburbs of St. Laurent, L'Abord de Plaisie and Dorval. Subsequently, the suburban establishments were raided by Provincial Police, and closed. Latest reports to police say the gamblers have moved to Winnipeg and elsewhere.

Spencer J. Drayton, head of the United States Thoroughbred Racing Protective Bureau, in a speech last April at Baltimore, declared that layoff bets handled through Montreal exceeded the $1,600,000,000 bet legitimately at United States race tracks in a year. Drayton, speaking before the National Association of Racing Commissioners, said the amount in excess of $1,600,000,000 that passed through the clearing houses in a year "was a matter of speculation."

"Layoff betting" occurs when a local bookmaker discovers he has accepted too many wagers on a single race horse, prize fight, baseball game or other event. The bookmaker keeps part of the wagers, and "lays off" the balance, paying a premium for the service. James J. Carroll, St. Louis gambler, testified that in pre-Kefauver days his company alone handled $20,000,000 annually in layoff wagers.

Big Handle on Rose Bowl.

An unusual set of circumstances last New Year's Eve revealed big-time layoff operations in an office on Bleury street, in which former St. Louisian Beckley was reported to be involved. Police, investigating a reported burglary, discovered an open door to the office, in which they found stacks of betting memorandums. Assistant Director of Police Pacific Plante, who previously contended the betting ring had been smashed, said the data found by police indicated the clearing house handled $500,000 in bets on the New Year's Day Rose Bowl football game.

Bettors clamored for their payoffs, and Douglas Stevens, who said he was a clerk in the establishment, eventually entered a plea of guilty and received a six months jail sentence. Beckley, who had an apartment in the 6100 block of Cote St. Luc road, had his telephone disconnected and moved, apparently abandoning his Montreal business.

Police have found that the gamblers were required to pay 10 per cent of their profits to "the syndicate." An inquiry now underway is to determine which "syndicate."

The inquiry was sparked when the Nevada tax commission, through its secretary, Robbins Cahill, found out that hundreds of thousands of dollars was being weekly to Montreal in "layoff" bets. It is illegal to send gambling money outside Nevada—the law on gambling there is that it must be within the state boundaries.

Authorities in New York and

New Jersey also inquired here about the large amount of money flowing toward Montreal and the telephone and betting traffic between these states. Their inquiries and information also aided the authorities here.

COUNTY COUNCIL'S APPRAISAL

FIRM ACTION IS PRAISED

The action of the St. Louis County Council Saturday in authorizing employment of two appraisers, at an $855,000 fee, to conduct a parcel-by-parcel revaluation of county real estate was praised today by Chairman Ralph L. Devereaux of the County Democratic Central Committee.

"The action of the council appears to be the only solution to a very bad situation," Devereaux said in a statement. "It therefore seems that the State Tax Commission should give it favorable consideration and should co-operate by refraining from putting into effect an across-the-board arbitrary increase this year."

Even though the commission has properly criticized county authorities for their past neglect in this field, it is difficult to see how some slight additional delay could serve as any real objection to this full and fair solution to the problem, in view of the many years it has existed."

ELIZABETH SEES SUBDUED VERSION OF IBSEN'S PLAY

OSLO, June 27 (AP)—Britain's visiting Queen Elizabeth II attended a gala but expurgated performance of Henrik Ibsen's "Peer Gynt" Saturday night.

Actress Liv Stoenmest, as the Woman in Green, daughter of the old man of Dovre mountain, played a subdued version of her normally sexy and uninhibited scenes. Her attire, usually little more than a tattered bikini, was brought up to more rigid standards of modesty.

The play, which normally lasts four hours, was cut to the first two acts.

Queen Elizabeth wore a glittering white and silver lame dress with a faint bluish tint, long white gloves, and a diamond tiara. Sitting with her in the royal box were Norway's 82-year-old King Haakon VII, the Duke of Edinburgh and Crown Prince Olav of Norway, all wearing admirals' uniforms.

The Queen and Duke of Edinburgh left Norwegian soil last night after their three-day state visit. They boarded a launch which took them to their ship, the Britannia. King Haakon, who saw them off, gave the young queen what appeared from a distance to be a kiss on the cheek.

Aerial Daredevil Falls Into Crowd When Pole Snaps

SHREWSBURY, Mass., June 27 (AP)—An aerial daredevil and four spectators were injured last night when a 65-foot pole buckled and crashed into the crowd at an amusement park.

Herman Hoyer fell 55 feet while his wife watched on the ground. Hoyer suffered two fractured feet and possible spinal injuries.

His act is to ride a unicycle around a three-foot-square platform on top of the pole. He works without a net.

He said he was about to do a headstand on the bicycle when he felt the pole sway more than usual. Then he tried to slide down the pole. He was about 10 feet down when the pole crashed into the crowd.

None of the spectators was hurt seriously.

FORMER HUNGARIAN LEADER REPORTED IN SOVIET CAMP

VIENNA, June 27 (UP)—Former Secretary General of the conservative Hungarian Small Land Owners party, Bela Kovacs, is in a Russian prison near Moscow, Austrian prisoners returning today from Soviet labor camps reported.

The Austrians said they met Kovacs at Vladimir prison, 100 miles east of Moscow. Kovacs, 62, was one of the most violent anti-Soviet political leaders in postwar Hungary. He was arrested by the Soviets in 1947 in Budapest.

2 MEN BURNED IN BLAST IN ST. CHARLES HOSPITAL

Casper Doerhoff, an engineer, and Grover Jose, a maintenance employee, were seriously burned today in an explosion in a utility room in the basement of St. Joseph's Hospital, St. Charles.

Cause of the blast was not immediately determined. Authorities said there were no gas outlets in the room.

Both men were burned on the arms, head and chest. Doerhoff, who is 41 years old, suffered a broken right leg. Jose, 23, lives in New Melle, near St. Charles, and Doerhoff on Route 2, St. Charles. Both are hospital employees.

IN HIGHWAY 40 ACCIDENT

Charles P. Sproule of Wheeling, W. Va., was killed and three others were seriously injured today in an automobile accident on United States Highway 40, three miles west of Greenville, Ill. Greenville is about 45 miles northeast of St. Louis.

Injured were Harold Goldman, Arnold Goldfelder of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Roland D. Colosi of Niagara Falls, N.Y., all sailors on the U.S.S. Isherwood in San Francisco. They were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital at Highland, Ill.

Sproule, a driver for Hayes Freight Line, was going west when an automobile, driven in the opposite direction by Goldman, side-swiped his tractor-trailer loaded with sheet steel. Sproule lost control of the machine, which ran off the highway, turned over and pinned him underneath.

2 MEN BURNED IN BLAST IN ST. CHARLES HOSPITAL

Casper Doerhoff, an engineer, and Grover Jose, a maintenance employee, were seriously burned today in an explosion in a utility room in the basement of St. Joseph's Hospital, St. Charles.

Cause of the blast was not immediately determined. Authorities said there were no gas outlets in the room.

Both men were burned on the arms, head and chest. Doerhoff, who is 41 years old, suffered a broken right leg. Jose, 23, lives in New Melle, near St. Charles, and Doerhoff on Route 2, St. Charles. Both are hospital employees.

PUPPY TRAPPED
18 HOURS RESCUED

Snowball, a sad and bedraggled four-week old fox-terrier, was rescued by two Humane Society of Missouri workers today after 18 hours trapped in a sewer. The dog was rushed to the Society's shelter at 1210 Macklind avenue.

The pup, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Buetterhorn of 5446 Plover avenue, apparently fell through a six-inch opening into the sewer in the Buetterhorn's back yard after children removed the grating.

Rescuers George Stricklin and Bob Brandau worked five hours last night, then came back to the job this morning with a 50-foot cable, used for cleaning sewers. Snowball had crawled into a lateral sewer about 25 feet from where he fell in. But by tying rags to the end of the cable, Stricklin and Brandau were able, after several passes, to sweep him back out.

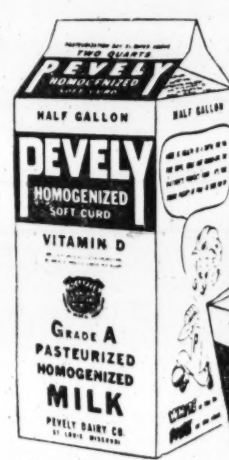

Except for a coating of mud half an inch thick, the dog appeared to have survived the ordeal as well as could be expected.

STEEL WORKERS' STRIKE THURSDAY MIDNIGHT VOTED

Union Head Empowered to Call Walkout if Wage Issue Is Not Settled by Then.

PITTSBURGH, June 27 (AP)—The CIO United Steel Workers wage policy committee today authorized its president to call a strike Thursday midnight if no wage agreement is reached with the basic steel industry.

The 170-member committee told union negotiators to hold themselves available for continual "round-the-clock" negotiations with the various companies to reach a mutual and satisfactory agreement before the strike deadline.

David J. McDonald, union president, said he will ask United States Steel Corporation, the industry's pace setter, to resume negotiations tomorrow.

The policy committee acted on the recommendation of the 39-member executive board.

McDonald met with the board and the policy committee after turning down offers of 10½ cents an hour from Inland Steel Co. and 10 cents an hour from United States Steel.

William G. Caples, vice president and head negotiator for Inland Steel, told reporters his firm's offer "is no indication that we will not make a new proposal" before Thursday midnight.

United States Steel's head negotiator, John A. Stephens, said he is "always optimistic."

Caples reminded the union in writing that his firm's contract specifies the union must give 120 hours' advance notice of its intention to strike.

McDonald, in his formal rejection reply, told Caples the letter would serve as official notice of the union's strike intention. But he also said:

"There remains sufficient time to work out an equitable settlement before the strike deadline."

Joseph L. Block, Inland president, said in Chicago his firm, "having offered a wage increase topping any made this year by a major American industry, hopes and believes an agreement will be made with the union and a strike avoided."

"However," Block said, "to safeguard the lives of employees and protect the properties, all necessary arrangements for an orderly shutdown have been made. Initial steps in such a program will be undertaken tomorrow if no agreement is reached by that time."

The union said telegrams have been sent to all district directors notifying them to begin preparing to shut down steel mills at midnight Thursday. A union spokesman said, however, the action was "routine."

The union said it has received no offer from any other company. Most of the firms, however, usually wait for U.S. Steel, the world's largest producer, to reach agreement and adopt those terms as a pattern.

The union's demand for wage hikes affects 600,000 members in basic steel mills. They now earn an average of $2.33 an hour.

The wage talks are being conducted under a wage reopening clause in a two-year pact signed last year. The union can not make demands for a guaranteed wage this year.

Text of Statement Summarizing 10th U.N. Anniversary Session

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27 (AP).—Text of the San Francisco declaration issued by Dr. Eelco N. Van Kleffens, president of the United Nations anniversary session, yesterday:

A CONSIDERABLE number of representatives of member states have informed me of their general desire that I should sum up at this final session the sense of the meeting during this week of commemoration, which has become also a week of re-dedication. I believe that, to the best of my ability, I can summarize the statements of the members as follows:

1. All member participants in the commemorative meeting of the United Nations assembled in San Francisco on the tenth anniversary of the organization, have reaffirmed their common determination to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war. The 10 years since June 26, 1945, have given new meaning and urgency to this universal aspiration that the peoples, for they knew that another war fought with the weapons now at their disposal would bring untold calamities to mankind. Their aim is peace, based in accordance with the explicit text of the Charter on security, justice, and good neighborliness.

"2. They proclaim again their common dedication to the purposes and principles formulated in the United Nations Charter. They recognize that the hope of enduring peace rests upon how well the nations carry out these purposes and uphold these principles in their relations with each other.

3. They have reaffirmed their determination to make new efforts to settle international disputes, as the Charter calls upon them to do, by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security, and justice, are not endangered, and to live together in peace and amity.

4. They have pledged themselves equally to press forward in the search for agreement on a disarmament plan that can provide a greater measure of security to the nations and remove the threat of atomic destruction from the world. They declare their belief in the determination of the nations to direct the creative resources, thus freed from the burden of armaments, to the improvement of the lives of peoples everywhere.

The difficulties before us are as evident as the dangers and disappointment of the past. But we have the Charter as our guide, the Charter which prescribes that the United Nations shall be used as a center for harmonizing the actions of the member states.

HOOVER UNIT FOR CIVILIAN CONTROL OF SERVICE OUTGO

Proposes Reorganization It Says Would Save 2 Billion Dollars a Year.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The Hoover Commission recommended today that supply and service functions of the Department of Defense be reorganized and placed under a single civilian administrator to provide "more efficient management."

In a report to Congress on a broad study of business activities of the defense establishment, the commission listed 19 recommendations for reorganization of defense operations not considered strictly military in nature.

The report estimated that two billion dollars could be saved annually if they were put into effect.

"Commercial-Type Operations."
In general, the recommendations would have the effect of removing "commercial-type operations" of the Defense Department from supervision by the military, thereby freeing "professional military personnel of unnecessary administrative burdens," the commission said.

Along this line, the report suggested that four important defense functions—logistics, research and development, personnel and finance—be "reorganized" under four new assistant defense secretaries with managerial experience.

A third major recommendation was that the Secretary of Defense create within his office a civilian position "with sufficient stature and authority" to insure effective planning and review of military requirements.

The commission also recommended that the department be allowed to hire top-flight executives without forcing them to liquidate their holdings of stocks.

Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson was required to sell $2,500,000 worth of stocks before the Senate would approve his nomination to the defense post.

Secretary of the Army Robert T. B. Stevens also had to sell large stockholdings.

Nine of the recommendations could be put into effect by Defense Department officials under existing authority, and the other 10 would require legislation, the commission said.

The report was prepared by a committee of 23 business and professional men headed by Charles R. Hook, chairman of the board of Armco Steel Corp.

The committee utilized findings of Hoover Commission task forces and subcommittees which studied various aspects of the Defense Department.

Some Disagreement.
The 12-man commission, headed by former President Herbert Hoover and known formally as the Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government, endorsed the Hook committee's report, describing it as "so succinct that it cannot be condensed."

However, two commissioners, Representative Chet Holifield (Dem., California), and former Postmaster General James A. Farley, also a Democrat, attached qualifications to their approvals.

Three other members, Senators Styles Bridges (Rep., New Hampshire), and John L. McClellan (Dem., Arkansas), and Representative Clarence J. Brown (Rep., Ohio), expressed doubts about the proposed new supply and service agency. Brown dissented from this part of the report.

The General Services Administration handles purchase of supplies and arrangement of services for most civilian agencies of the executive branch of the federal government. The report suggested something along this line for the Defense Department, to be called the defense supply and service administration.

It said the new agency would "furnish only common supply, commercial-type items and services and would be expected to eliminate much of the waste, duplication and inefficiency" in defense purchasing of non-military items.

The report said at one point it was not designed as "criticism of officials or departments or agencies" of the Defense Department, adding that the military establishment was "better administered than might be expected."

Flaws in Operations.
Later in the report, however, the Hook committee said "four obstacles" were "impeding close and productive working relationships among top defense executives." It listed these as:

1. "Decisions and information do not flow freely from the Joint Chiefs of Staff to the assistant secretaries of Defense," and this deprives the Defense Department of the benefit of civilian experience.

2. Poor assignment of responsibility in the office of the Secretary of Defense "impedes effective co-ordination."

3. The responsibilities of assistant secretaries in each of the three main military branches differ widely in nature and scope, again lessening co-ordination.

4. Responsibility for management of "support activities" is not clearly defined between civilian and military heads, with neither group knowing exactly how much authority it has in this field.

The report said its recommendations were designed to remove these difficulties by assigning "clear and unchallenged direction" of the entire Defense establishment "to the Secretary of Defense, the secretaries of the three military departments and their civilian subordinates."

STATE SEEKS BIDS ON THIRD STREET PARKING AREA

The State Highway Department announced today that it is receiving bids for a 10-year lease of parking space for approximately 75 automobiles under an elevated section of the Third Street Highway between Gratiot and Lombard streets.

The ground level parking area covers about 30,000 square feet, running west of the highway to an alley connecting the two streets.

If this pilot project, the highway department's first in the St. Louis area, is successful, leasing arrangements on other suitable sites here will be made, it was announced.

How to feel air-borne in one easy session

Just be our guest
with Variable Pitch Dynaflo®*

It's The Hardtop with Four Doors!

Another big reason for Buick's soaring sales is the 4-Door Buick—the new hit in hardtops that's taking the country by storm. The "Convertible" look, with no center posts—but with separate doors for rear-seat passengers. Shown here in the high-powered CENTURY model—also available in the low-price SPECIAL Series. Both now in volume production to insure prompt deliveries.

THE ride alone is enough to make you feel you're cloud-cruising when you're in a Buick.

Big soft-acting coil springs on all four wheels—a steady full-length torque-tube—the pillow-cushioning of low-pressure tubeless tires—and a long list of other great ride-engineering gems see to that.

But you're closer to flight travel than just in the way you ride when you're in the driver's seat of a new Buick. Variable Pitch Dynaflo sees to that.

For here you do what the pilot of a modern airliner does for quick take-off and climb, and for better gas mileage aloft—you vary the pitch of your driving propellers.

You do it quite simply—just by the way you press the gas pedal.

Press down in the normal way, and twenty propeller-like blades inside the Dynaflo unit hold at their high economy angle—to give you many more miles from every tankful of gas.

Press way down when the need arises—and you switch the pitch of those blades for high performance.

Instantly, you're off and away. Instantly, you're at full-power acceleration in a safety-surge of forward momentum that's thrilling beyond all previous motoring experience.

What more can we say—except come try it!

It's a new kind of spectacular action—smooth to the absolute. It's yours with the virile might of Buick's record-powered V8 engines—and easily yours at great-buy prices that are sending Buick sales soaring to all-time best-seller highs.

Come in this week and be our guest at the wheel of the most sensational Buick yet.

*Variable Pitch Dynaflo is the only Dynaflo Buick build today. It is standard on Roadmaster, optional at modest extra cost on other Series.

COMMUNISM LOSING GROUND IN EUROPE, UNION HEADS SAY

NEW YORK, June 27 (AP)—Two labor leaders returned today from Europe and said they found Communism was losing its influence in labor everywhere outside the Iron Curtain countries.

The leaders, David Dubinsky, president of the AFL International Garment Workers Union, and Jacob S. Potofsky, president of the CIO Amalgamated Clothing Workers, arrived aboard the liner Liberte. They had attended the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions conference in Vienna and also visited Israel and Sicily.

"We found the influence of Communism in labor is losing ground," they said, "while we, the free trade unionists, are gaining."

Dubinsky said they found a marked improvement in the working conditions of Europeans since his last visit four years ago. However, he said, "nobody is better off than the American workingman."

CLOUDY OR OVERCAST WEATHER IN MOST LARGE CITIES ABROAD

WASHINGTON, June 27 (UPI)—Congressional leaders abandoned hope today of enacting controversial new housing legislation before midnight Thursday when four major housing programs expire.

As a stopgap, chairman Brent Spence (Dem., Kentucky, of the House Banking Committee) said he would call for a speedy approval of a resolution to continue present programs temporarily, perhaps for 30 days.

A Senate-passed bill to overhaul present housing programs cleared the House committee last Thursday after drastic revision.

Faces Sharp Floor Fight.

But it faces sharp floor fights over (1) its public housing provisions, and (2) a move to attach an amendment to bar racial segregation in housing built under federal mortgage programs.

Spence planned to appear before the House Rules Committee today to urge that the housing measure be cleared for floor action this week. Even if the bill should pass the House this week, a Senate-House conference committee would have to be assigned to work out a compromise agreement with the Senate.

A major difference between the Senate and House bills is that the Senate measure included a Democratic program to provide 135,000 new units of public housing each year for the next four years. The House committee rejected that and approved instead President Eisenhower's program of 35,000 for two years.

Powerful Opponents.

A powerful bloc of opponents of public housing plan to attempt to knock all federally-subsidized public housing out of the bill when it reaches the House floor.

Scheduled to expire at midnight Thursday are programs which provide federal mortgage insurance for military housing, defense housing and for home repair and modernization loans. Also scheduled to expire is the public housing program under which only 142 of the 35,000 units authorized last year have been started.

Mr. Eisenhower's program, approved by the House committee, would allow the remainder of the 35,000 units to be started, as well as authorizing 70,000 new units.

ACQUIRES ANOTHER TAX LIEN ON SOVIET ESTATE IN U.S.

GLEN COVE, N.Y., June 27 (AP)—Real estate dealer Joseph Harris has purchased a $15,605 tax lien representing delinquent city and school taxes for 1954 against Killenworth, the estate of the Soviet delegation of the United Nations.

Harris already holds 1953 and 1954 county, town and city liens on the Soviet property here and in nearby upper Brookville. His latest purchase brings his holdings on the estates to $80,000.

Unless the Soviet government pays the delinquent taxes by Dec. 31, Harris may legally institute foreclosure proceedings.

WEST GERMANY TO SUPPORT SILESIAN EXPELLEES' CLAIMS

HANOVER, Germany, June 27 (AP)—Three hundred thousand German expellees from Silesia, now under Polish control, heard solemn pledges yesterday that Germany will never renounce its claim to their homeland.

Jakob Kaiser, West German cabinet minister for all-German affairs, told the giant rally here that the Bonn government supports their claim along with the demand for reunification of Germany in freedom.

Dr. H. Doms, chairman of the Association of Silesian Expellees, said he was convinced that "Poland, once liberated from Bolshevism, will recognize our claims to our homes and property."

TWO WOMEN HURT WHEN TREE FALLS ON PICNIC TABLE

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., June 27 (UPI)—Two women were injured, neither dangerously, when a huge tree fell on a picnic table at which they were seated late yesterday.

Mrs. Marie Jewell, 61 years old, was pinned against the table by the 30-foot tree, so heavy that about 20 men were needed to lift it from her. She suffered head and neck injuries, but was reported in satisfactory condition today at the Independence Sanitarium.

Mrs. Veda Shannon, 51, suffered minor injuries. A third woman, Mrs. Otis Taylor, 28, leaped into a nearby lake when she saw the tree falling. She was not hurt.

Members of the group said they had noticed the trunk of the tree was split, but that it weakened. Half of the trunk did not appear to have been remained standing.

FATHER OF TRIPLETS JOINS HIS WIFE IN GANDER, N.F.

GANDER, N. F., June 27 (AP)—The father of triplet daughters who were nearly born over the Atlantic arrived here last night, rushed to the hospital and embraced his wife and two older children.

Gordon Keith left Windom, Minn., as soon as he learned his wife had had the babies two months prematurely. 10 hours after she was landed here from a trans-Atlantic flight.

Mrs. Keith is resting for a few days before being flown to the United States Pepperell Air Force Base near St. Johns, N. F., to join her babies, already moved there so better facilities could be used for looking after them.

RELY ON LOVE, PERSUASION, CHIANG TELLS POLICEMEN

TAIPEI, Formosa, June 27 (UPI)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek told police yesterday to resort to love and persuasion in carrying out their duties instead of using pressure and force.

The Nationalist leader criticized force techniques in a message to the opening session of Formosa's police administration conference.

He urged policemen to look into their own conduct and to take care they abide by the law in the performance of their duties.

Eisenhower Resumes Tour After Weekend of Fishing

Heads for Home of Senator Margaret Chase Smith for Clambake—Will Fly to Washington Tonight.

PARMACHENESE LAKE, Me., June 27 (AP)—President Eisenhower resumed his road tour through northern New England today after a weekend of fishing at a private club on Parmacheneese Lake.

The President and his party left the Lake Club after lunch with some of the state's political leaders including Senator Frederick Payne (Rep., Maine), and Maine's three Republican members of Congress. Maine's other Republican Senator, Margaret Chase Smith, will be his hostess at a clambake tonight at her home in Skowhegan.

The President will receive an official welcome to traditionally Republican Maine from Democratic Gov. Edmund S. Muskie, Gov. Muskie the first Democrat chosen as chief executive of this traditionally Republican state in 20 years, will greet the President late today at Skowhegan.

A few hours later Mr. Eisenhower will fly back to Washington, ending a six-day tour of northern New England. Mr. Eisenhower fished for about six hours yesterday and caught two salmon and a mess of trout in the Magalloway river at Little Boy Falls. One of the salmon was an 18-inch weighing about two pounds. The other was under the legal "keeping" size of 14 inches and the President threw it back.

The trout averaged 10 to 12 inches and Mr. Eisenhower, who caught them "fast and furiously," Hagerty reported—had them stored in the refrigerator for his breakfast this morning.

WINDOWS OF 8 CARS BROKEN

Windows of eight automobiles on a parking lot at 400 North Twelfth boulevard were broken sometime between midnight Saturday and 2:30 a.m. yesterday, but articles were stolen from only two of them.

One owner reported the loss of tickets for three box seats at Busch stadium yesterday and remembered the box number. Police waited at the ball park, but no one showed up using the tickets. The other things taken were a small portable radio, a pillow and an umbrella.

FIREMEN SAVE 3 CHILDREN

Three children trapped by fire and smoke in a second-floor apartment at 2911 Lawton boulevard were rescued by firemen yesterday. They are David, 4 years old; Stanford, 2, and Crawford, 7 months, sons of Mrs. Irene Times, who told police she had left them alone for about 15 minutes when she went to a store. They are Negroes.

Neighbors who were forced out of nearby apartments told firemen they thought some children were unable to get out. Using a ladder, the firemen found the youngest child on a bed and the others under it.

SOLDIERS' MEMORIAL HEAD NOTIFIED HE IS OUT OF JOB

James J. Roe, 1410 Switzer street, who has served as superintendent of Soldiers' Memorial for the past five years under appointment by the late Mayor Joseph M. Daffert, has been notified by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker that he will not be reappointed.

Tucker was scheduled to meet today with members of the Soldiers' Memorial Commission, who are to recommend a successor to Roe. The superintendent of the memorial serves concurrently with the Mayor, or until a successor is appointed.

$40 OIL STATION HOLDUP

George E. Moore, attendant at the Clark service station, 1139 North Kingshighway, was robbed of $40 early today by a man who threatened him with a revolver.

After saying, "This is a hold-up," the man forced Moore into the rest room, told him to remain there, and fled on foot. Moore, who lives at 1508 Montgomery street, told police that the robber, a Negro, was about 30 years old.

EUGENE HUBBARD TRIAL SET

Trial of Eugene Clifford Hubbard of Collinsville on six charges growing out of the attempted holdup of the Kampsville (Ill.) Bank last May 1 was set for Sept. 12 after Hubbard pleaded not guilty in United States District Judge Charles G. Briggles court at Springfield, Ill., today.

Hubbard was one of two ex-convicts who kidnaped Harry Waldheuser, bank cashier, and his wife from their home in an effort to escape from Kampsville residents and police. Waldheuser and Hubbard's companion, Thomas Underwood, were killed when the fugitive's automobile overturned.

SENATE GROUP VOTES BILL ON TEXAS CITY BLAST PAY

WASHINGTON, June 27 (UP)—The Senate Judiciary committee today approved legislation to pay damages to victims of the 1947 Texas City disaster.

The bill would reverse a Supreme Court decision and recognize the Federal Government's responsibility for damages in the explosion of two ships loaded with ammonium nitrate fertilizer, killing 570 persons and injuring 3500.

Under the bill the United States District Court for the southern district of Texas would be granted special jurisdiction to determine damage claims resulting from the disaster. The court would appoint masters to hold hearings and determine the amount of claims to be paid in individual cases. The bill provides that no insurance company shall be entitled to any of the claims awarded to individuals.

PLEA FOR 'CAPTIVE EATERS'

"Captive eaters" should get better food, an Alton physician, Dr. Harry Mantz, told the Illinois Medical Society's nutrition committee last night at its annual meeting in Chicago. He defined captive eaters as those who eat institutional and school meals over which they have no control.

"A positive assurance of adequate nutrition for those millions of people would be a great step forward," Mantz declared. He said that prison riots at Jefferson City were an example of trouble caused by poor feeding.

9 CHIANG AI DS GET DEATH IN RED CHINA ON SPY CHARGES

HONG KONG, June 27 (AP)—Nine "Chiang Kai-shek agents" have been sentenced to death on charges of spying and sabotage in Shantung and Shansi provinces, the official Communist New China news agency reported today from Peking.

Death sentences given 14 others were suspended for two years or commuted to imprisonment ranging up to life. The Reds charged the group of 23 passed on military, political and economic information to a Nationalist espionage organization in Hong Kong.

U.S. Official Killed in Sweden. ESKILSTUNA, Sweden, June 27 (AP)—Wayne C. Anderson, of Red Oak, Ia., agricultural attaché at the United States embassy in Stockholm, died today from injuries suffered Thursday in an automobile accident. He was 44 years old.

SENATE INQUIRY BEGUN INTO U.S. PASSPORT POLICY

Hennings to Call Hearings on Question of Right to Refuse Them Arbitrarily.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 27—The Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights has launched an investigation of the State Department's controversial passport policy, Chairman Thomas C. Hennings Jr., (Dem.), Missouri, announced today.

Hennings said public hearings will be scheduled at "an early date" on the long-standing question of the departments right to refuse arbitrarily to grant passports. It is hoped the inquiry will lead to "constructive action" by Congress, Hennings declared.

The investigation will be part of the subcommittee's broad study of the field of Constitutional rights—a study intended eventually to examine the present-day status of civil liberties guaranteed by the Bill of Rights.

Jolted by Court Ruling. The United States Court of Appeals here last week struck down the State Department's contention that it has exclusive control over issuance of passports to Americans for travel abroad. The court held that the right to receive passports is subject to judicial review, and that to deprive a citizen of a passport without due cause being shown is a violation of his constitutional rights.

Senator Arthur V. Watkins, (Rep., Utah), commenting on the decision, suggested an investigation. Hennings said he agreed "wholeheartedly" that passport policy should be studied by Congress.

"The Constitutional Rights subcommittee has been studying the matter for some time and will schedule public hearings on the subject at an early date," Hennings wrote Watkins.

"At these public hearings, we expect to look into past policies and practices of the State Department on the granting of passports, and get the views of the community on the type of passport policy best calculated to reconcile the national interest with the individual right to travel."

"The investigation, of course, will in no way interfere with the right of the State Department to take the present passport decision to the Supreme Court for final adjudication."

Appeal Being Considered. The Justice Department has said it is considering whether to appeal last week's decision to the Supreme Court. The subcommittee's investigation marks the first congressional reaction to the decision.

Hennings said there are aspects of the passport problem which can be settled only by Congress, not by the State Department or the courts.

"For example," he said, "one of the important factors in the present controversy is the 1952 law authorizing the President to forbid anybody to depart from or enter the United States unless a bears a valid passport."

"It is up to Congress to determine whether or not this law should remain on the statute books, and whether we can look forward to a time when freedom of travel without passports will again be feasible."

Other members of the subcommittee are Senators Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming, and William Langer (Rep.), North Dakota.

The court of appeals decision was in the nature of a bombshell. Attorneys general since the time of President Grant have held that the State Department has sole authority to issue or refuse passports, which were viewed in theory as a personal introduction of the citizen by the President.

Question of Basic Right. In addition, the State Department contended passports involved foreign relations, thus giving it sole jurisdiction. But the Appellate Court said passports were a necessary adjunct to a citizen's constitutional right to travel from place to place, adding that the protection against being deprived of liberty without due process applied.

Frequent attacks have been made on the State Department's passport office, until recently headed by Mrs. Ruth B. Shipley. Congressmen and liberal groups often have protested against alleged "one-woman" rule of the office by Mrs. Shipley, who once admitted to a congressional committee that she kept a "blacklist" of persons to whom passports were denied.

The American Civil Liberties union recently announced it would seek to force issuance of passports to five persons who have been denied passports, among them Martin D. Kamen, Washington University biochemist.

SIX KILLED WHEN AMERICAN JET RAMS BRITISH BOMBER

BITBURG, Germany, June 27 (UP)—An American sabrejet rammed a British Lincoln bomber four miles above the earth, early Sunday morning during night maneuvers of Operation Carte Blanche.

Second Lt. William H. Whitten, of Chillicothe, O., shot himself clear of his plummeting F-86-D with the ejector seat, parachuted to earth and telephoned his base. He had "hit something." He said he "never even saw the British plane."

Six British crewmen were killed when the four-engined bomber crashed in flames in the Eiffel mountains, seven miles northwest of Bitburg.

Britain Decides Against Taxing Race Winnings After 4-Year Study

Half of Population Bets on Horse, Dog Events—Commission Says Levy Would Be Hard to Enforce.

By ERNIE HILL
 The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio Copyright 1955
 LONDON, June 27—Two prim old girls who study the racing form every morning in my favorite Kensington tea shoppe have stopped worrying.

 A campaign to slap a tax on horse race winnings has been quashed by a royal investigating committee.

In completing a four-year study of taxation, the commission reports that the taxing of winnings from horse and dog tracks and football pools would be inhumane to enforce.

What is worse, it would lead to a frightful tangle with punters—as British bettors are called. It would open the way for them to claim exemption on their losses.

Since half the British population bets and since more money is lost than is won, the government would be cutting its own throat. It recommends that the subject be dropped.

Sensible Decision.
 "And a jolly sensible decision too," said one of the white-haired ladies. "We'd have a revolution in this country if they tried to tax turf winnings. It's the only way you can make money nowadays."

In 1954, this country with a population of 50,000,000 and an area about that of Oregon bet these sums:

Horses, $1,000,000,000.
 Dogs, $335,000,000.
 Football pools, $205,000,000.

Bookmaking is legal in Britain and the British are quick to defend their system and describe it as the best in the world.

They believe the Irish have gone too far in allowing "turf accountants" to operate openly on every street corner. The Irish take cash bets across the counter and pay off every 30 minutes.

And they consider that the United States is guilty of interfering with personal liberties in making off-the-track betting illegal.

English bookies are respectable people by and large. They go to church, give to charity, send their children to college and pay a straight income tax on their winnings. Their books are open to inspection at all times.

Bookie bets are either telephoned, telegraphed or mailed in. Credit is extended to customers. At the close of each week, a bill or a check is sent out.

Another royal commission that looked into the matter of gambling a few years back gave the system a clean bill of health.

It found that it gave employment to 77,000 persons.

The commission estimated that bookies handled bets totaling about $784,000,000 a year—all of this on a credit basis.

Visits Bookie.
 To observe a bookie operation, this reporter spent an afternoon at the establishment of William Hill, Ltd., on Piccadilly Circus.

William Hill is the world's No. 1 bookie handling bets of more than $100,000,000 a year. This is an estimate. Bookies like some business firms are shy about disclosing their business figures.

William Hill occupies a five-story building and employs 500 persons to handle his horse and dog business. He operated another enterprise for football betting but he sold that business for $3,000,000 early in June.

"I was vacationing in Jamaica recently," he said, "and used to get the Miami Herald every day. I was amazed to read so much about bookie raids and the bribery of officials. It sounded like constant warfare."

"That's why we believe we have the best system. Book-making establishments are not open to the public and are not a constant temptation."

"To place a bet, a customer must have an account. He must telephone us, send a telegram or a letter placing his bet. We never see him. He never sees us."

The natural question, of course, is how much they lose to dead beats.

The Hill organization, he said, loses less than one-half of 1 per cent to bad debts.

On telephone wagers, the profit runs 4 to 5 per cent.

In other words, for every $100 bet the organization pays out $94 to $95 in winnings. Most of the profit is spent for overhead and advertising. Net profits rarely reach 2 per cent on the gross.

Bookmakers, as well as the tote at race tracks, handle bets from two shillings up. Two shillings is 25 cents. Many people bet 25 or 50 cents a day and spend hours studying form.

Hill has a few customers who place bets up to $28,000 on one race. Several Indian potentates are in this class.

One English lord is included in this upper betting bracket. He calls to place his bet 30 seconds before the horses are off. This prevents Hill from telephoning his man at the race track to get rid of most of the bet by putting it on the track tote. If it is put on the tote, the odds go down.

About four years ago, the House of Lords ruled in a case that it was impossible to prosecute a man for gambling debts. Bookmakers have no recourse now. They can only have the defaulter "warned off the course" so they can not attend races.

The Bookmakers Protective Association is an organization that sees that its members are of high moral character. It also runs a service to prevent them from being unable to pay any unusual losses.

The royal commission's report on gambling stated that half the adult population of Britain bets on races at least once a year.

The royal commission said that betting losses were less than 1 per cent of the national income. It stated that this did not seem excessive so it recommended that there be no changes in the present system.

ST. LOUISAN DROWNS ON RED SEA OUTING

Miss Mary Ellen Hughes was an Employee of U.S. Embassy at Cairo.

Miss Mary Ellen Hughes of St. Louis, a United States Embassy employee at Cairo, Egypt, drowned yesterday off the Red Sea coast about 60 miles south of Suez while swimming with a party of American friends.

Miss Hughes, 21 years old, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Hughes, 2236 January Avenue. The accident happened near Attaka, Egypt, where she had gone with five other Embassy employees for a weekend of fishing and swimming.

Miss Hughes joined the State Department last July and arrived in Cairo Nov. 1. She was a secretary in the Embassy's security office, her first foreign assignment. She was graduated from St. Xavier High School in 1931 and later worked for Mequon-Norris Manufacturing Co. here.

Ambassador Henry A. Byrde called his condolences to Miss Hughes' parents and informed them that the body would be flown to St. Louis for burial, probably within the week.

Miss Hughes spoke with her family via trans-oceanic telephone last Tuesday. In letters home she said she was happy

ANTONIO SEGNI TRYING TO FORM ITALIAN CABINET

ROME, June 27 (AP)—Antonio Segni, 64-year-old farmer, scholar and left-of-center Christian Democrat, has until Thursday to accept or reject an invitation to try to become Italy's seventh postwar premier.

He was asked last night by President Giovanni Gronchi to see if he could line up a new government. Segni said he would talk with political leaders and explore the possibilities for a cabinet before undertaking the task officially.

Segni today received a pledge of "fullest co-operation" from the Christian Democrats. His next task is to win the support of the Social Democrats, Liberals and Republicans. These minor parties have indicated they are willing to go along with him.

It was the withdrawal of support by the Christian Democrats' minority right wing that forced Premier Scelba, also a member of the party, to resign last Wednesday.

HELEN KELLER 75 TODAY, WORLD SENDS GREETINGS

EASTON, Conn., June 27 (UP)—Helen Keller quietly observed her seventy-fifth birthday anniversary today, seemingly surprised that practically the whole world cared. Messages and flowers poured in from all over the globe. Many of the sending points were places visited during her recent world tour.

Miss Keller, who has been blind and deaf since infancy and has served as inspiration to thousands of handicapped persons, asked that no special plans be made and her wishes were kept.

She expressed surprise when reporters visited and she explained she was "very content with the quiet surroundings of my home."

HOUSE APPROVES EXTENSION OF RISE IN DEBT LIMIT

WASHINGTON, June 27 (AP)—The House today approved President Eisenhower's request that Congress extend for another year the "temporary" six-billion-dollar increase in the national debt limit voted last year.

The House sent to the Senate by a 226-to-56 vote a measure which would keep the legal debt ceiling at 281 billion dollars until July 1, 1958.

Without this extension the limit would automatically fall at the end of this month to the 275 billion dollars set in permanent law. The Senate is expected to act on the bill before the Thursday midnight deadline.

Although the federal debt at the end of this month is expected to be about 273½ billion dollars, both Democratic and Republican House leaders agreed an extension of the "temporary" ceiling is needed to give the Treasury flexibility in handling its finances.

Government expenditures ordinary outrun its income in the last half of a calendar year.

20 INCHES OF RAIN AND HAIL DAMAGE WYOMING CROPS

TORRINGTON, Wyo., June 27 (AP)—Cloudbursts which dumped up to 20 inches of rain and hail on southeastern Wyoming caused hundreds of thousands of dollars damages to sugar beet crops in the North Platte river valley last night.

Towns and highways were flooded, communications were cut off, and many motorists were stranded as the storms moved through a 75-mile-wide area. No deaths or serious injuries were reported.

At Torrington travel was cut off south and west of the city. About three-fourths of Fort Laramie, a town of 200, was flooded with water five feet deep in places. Three bridges between Fort Laramie and Guernsey were washed out, closing the highway.

The rain and hail fell for eight hours before it stopped about an hour after midnight.

Sunburn Pain Disappears Smooth Tan Emerges Without Peeling or Blistering

Science Discovers New Ointment That Instantly Stops Pain of Sunburn... Turns Redness Into Comfortable Tan

New York, N. Y. (Special): A leading research institution has discovered a new medical substance that instantly stops pain of sunburn... and prevents blistering or peeling, so angry redness may turn to handsome, comfortable tan.

Doctors know that sunburn affects skin just as any ordinary burn does. They also know the body needs oxygen for healing burns. The secret of this new substance is its astonishing ability to draw healing oxygen and nutrients directly from the bloodstream into the sunburned area. Thus, the sunburned skin heals completely and, except in unusual cases, smooth tan emerges.

This substance is known as Spertan Ointment. Spertan Ointment does not sting or stain. It is now sold at all drugstores for 98¢ a large tube. Buy Spertan Ointment with the amazing guarantee that your sunburn will turn to a handsome tan, or your money is refunded.

HOUSE SCHOOL BILL THREATENED BY RACIAL FIGHT

Anti-Segregation Amendment Probably Will Kill Legislation, Kelley Says.

WASHINGTON, June 27 (AP)—A fight over racial segregation confronted today a compromise $1,600,000,000 four-year federal school construction bill drafted by a House Education subcommittee.

House leaders said it probably would block enactment of any federal school legislation this year.

Representative Adam Clayton Powell (Dem.), New York, a Negro Congressman, said he intends to insist on inclusion of an anti-segregation amendment which subcommittee chairman Augustine Kelley (Dem.), Pennsylvania, said would "probably kill the bill."

The subcommittee bill goes to the full Education and Labor Committee for study and action, starting at a closed-door session today.

Powell turned down a personal request by President Eisenhower to drop proposed anti-segregation amendments to the Administration's military reserve and school bills.

Powell told reporters, however, he would withdraw his amendment only if the full education committee would accept a school bill drafted by Representative Stewart Udall (Dem.), Arizona. That offer was turned down by the subcommittee.

Effect of Udall's Bill.

Udall's bill in effect would bypass the states and authorize direct grants of federal school construction funds to local school districts complying with the supreme court's decision directing integration in the public schools.

The bill drafted by Kelley's subcommittee is a compromise of the Administration's loan program and bills calling for a broader program of federal grants to the states.

It would provide for $1,600,000,000 in federal grants at the rate of $400,000,000 a year for four years on a dollar-for-dollar matching basis with the states.

Each state would be entitled to a share of the money in the same ratio as its child population aged 5 to 17 years compares to the national population in the same age bracket.

Bond Purchase Program.

The subcommittee also adopted almost intact the Administration's proposed school bond purchase program. Its bill would authorize a $750,000,000 assistance fund for use over four years to purchase school building bonds of local school districts unable to finance their bond issues at "reasonable" rates of interest.

The interest rate would be the going rate paid by the Government on its own borrowings, plus no more than 3/4 of one per cent. Based on the present government interest rate, this would be 3 per cent.

NORTH KOREA HAS 580 WARPLANES, SEOUL CHARGES

Reports Attributed to Two Reds Who Defected — Story of Army Build-Up.

SEOUL, June 27 (AP)—Communist North Korea has built up an air force of 580 planes in violation of the armistice agreement, the Republic of Korea charged today.

The government said the North Korea Reds have three divisions of MIG-15 jets, a fighter-bomber force, 15 air bases in operation and two more under construction.

The ROK statement attributed the figures to two North Korean air force pilots who defected last week.

The Communist Korean air force now has 500 pilots and 25,000 men—with more being trained in Red China by Russian advisers and more planes coming in by rail, the government statement charged.

Flew Yak Fighter.

At the time of the armistice, North Korea had no air force in operation and no air bases that could be used for warplanes. Any air force or air base buildup would be an armistice violation, since the armistice forbids any step-up in forces over those in being on July 27, 1953—the armistice date.

The two pilots, Capt. Lee Un Yong and Lt. Lee Eun Sung, fled from North Korea June 21 and landed their Russian-built Yak fighter at Seoul airport.

The Government release, said the two gave these details:

1. The North Korean Air Force has three air divisions of MIG-15 jets, each with 92 planes; a fighter-bomber force and other planes to bring it to the 580 total, and is constantly expanding.

2. The North Korean army, once shattered by the Allies, has been rebuilt into a 600,000-man force organized into 50 divisions in nine separate corps. At present, 21 divisions are at the front.

3. During the Korean War, both Russian and Chinese Communist pilots flew from Manchurian bases only—not from North Korea. Russian pilots then flew as far as south of the Taedong river, which flows past Pyongyang, the North Korean capital.

4. North Korean pilots are being trained in China under Russian advisers in groups of from 40 to 80. Each man flies 150 hours in propeller engine planes and 30 hours in jets during the training course.

Koreans Outnumbered.

5. There are still more Chinese than North Korean Communist troops in North Korea, but the pilots did not know the exact number.

6. North Korean policy is to always say that the Allies are attacking or planning to attack the North but, actually the North Koreans "are planning an offensive—not a defensive." Incidents in the demilitarized zone are played up as allied violations and North Korean planes have orders to fire on allied planes.

7. Little actual reconstruction

8. New motorized artillery has been brought in from Russia.

The two North Korean flyers, the government release said, "want to become ROK citizens."

NATIONAL NEWSPAPER ADS RUNNING 8 PCT. ABOVE 1954

NEW YORK, June 27 (UP)—National newspaper advertising now is running at a record rate of $650,000,000 a year and in the first five months of 1955 showed an 8 per cent gain over last year, it was announced today.

If the present rate continues, 1955 national newspaper advertising will hit a higher peak than ever attained by an national medium, Harold S. Barnes, director of the bureau of advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, said.

JUSTICE DOUGLAS IN TOKYO, FINDS ASIA IMPROVING

These Older Cars Got New Car Mileage—OVER 20 MILES PER GALLON!

Results of the Run Certified by AAA Contest Board!

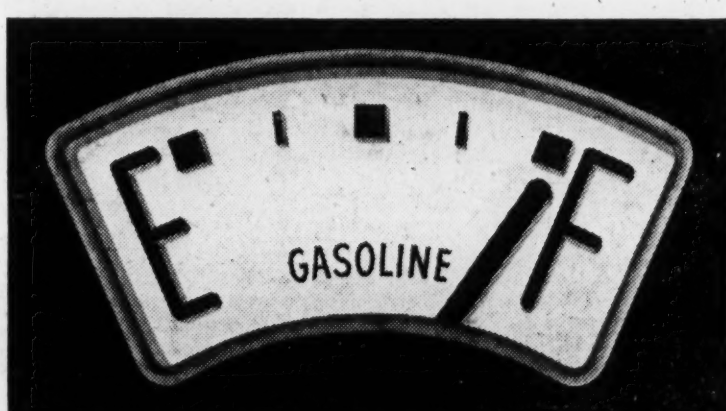

In this recent cross-country run, 2- and 3-year-old cars—with an average of 42,000 miles on their speedometers—each got over 20 miles per gallon. Each performance was certified by the AAA Contest Board.

IF YOUR CAR isn't brand new this cross-country test run ought to convince you that New Mobilgas is the right gas for you! For it is dramatic on-the-road proof that New Mobilgas does give more miles per gallon at regular price!

New Mobilgas can deliver better performance with longer mileage economy because it has higher than ever octane plus three gas-saving additives called Mobil Power Compound.

Mobil Power Compound protects against pre-ignition, spark plug misfiring, formation of engine gum, carburetor icing...and also helps keep fuel systems clean. That all adds up to smoother, more powerful driving with real savings on gas, mile after mile!

Try New Mobilgas in your car and see what a wonderful difference it makes!

FILL UP and watch your gas needle drop more slowly

Is Exact Opposite of Stevens.
Appointment Delights Military

He Is Not Afraid to Make Decisions;
Meets New Problems Head-On —
Tangled With McCarthy in Peress
Wrangle, Made Senator Lose Poise.

By BRIG. GEN. THOMAS R. PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)
Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 27.

THE LONG-DELAYED RESIGNATION of Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens, a victim of the Army-McCarthy feud, brings an entirely different type of man into the important post July 31.

Stevens, a shy little rich boy unaccustomed to gutter fighting and blows below the belt, is a contrast to the new Secretary, Wilbur M. Brucker, governor of Michigan for one term from 1931 to 1933 and a very successful trial lawyer since that time.

Where Stevens is withdrawn, Brucker's nature is outpouring. Where Stevens hated to make decisions and became querulous when forced to, Brucker has the lawyer's habit of making a thorough study of each problem and coming up with a conclusion that is so inevitable that the decision is automatic. Where Stevens, as a business man, was accustomed to a routine of operation which could be perfected without great disturbances, Brucker, as a lawyer, is accustomed to a continual flow of new problems demanding new knowledge and new thinking.

Army Officers Happy.

Senior Army officers are happy over Brucker's appointment. One declared: "The President could hardly have done better." They might have preferred someone with more Army background, but those who have had dealings with Brucker as general counsel for the Defense Department know that it will not take him long to bridge the gap from the time he was a second lieutenant in 1918 to the present.

There is a curious sentiment in the armed forces about their civilian chiefs. The officers and men want very strongly to have a Secretary of prestige, to whom they can look up. It is a bitter disappointment to them to have a President help in the political game, as has often been done. They remember the great secretaries such as Elihu Root, William Howard Taft, Henry L. Stimson, Newton D. Baker, John W. Weeks and Robert L. Patterson, whose names are still prominent in the Congress and the country of the austere and sacrificial existence that is the lot of the armed forces much of the time.

There is a good chance that in Brucker another great secretary has been appointed, and none too soon. The constantly increasing centralization that has been going forward under Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson has reduced the position of the secretaries of the three services to that of messengers or figureheads. This has been due partly to the weakness of some of the secretaries and partly to Wilson's habit of taking over anything that he or the President does not think is running properly and putting it directly under his own control.

A service chief of staff or a secretary of one of the services makes a statement that causes contention. Instead of correcting it, he no longer dares to hold a press conference. In that particular area, one sees that the secretaries of the three services hold almost no news conferences. It is hard to imagine the operating heads of organizations of more than 1,000,000 men with larger expenditures than any business in the world put into such a strait jacket.

A Difficult Time.
This is the situation into which the energetic and alert former Governor of Michigan is catapulted. Commentators have expressed the opinion that this is an easy time. On the contrary, this is a difficult time due to the increasing disorganization in the Defense Department that has resulted from over-centralization. The effect of the flow of military authority into the hands of innumerable assistant secretaries without an adequate military background has utterly discouraged the senior staff of all three services. The result has been a flight of many of the very best of the three- and four-star generals into the pleasant (and more profitable) fields of business.

The new Secretary of the Army makes no pretense of being a military expert or of familiarity with the Army's problems. He told the Post-Dispatch that he had absolutely no advance notice of the new appointment. This was also the case when the Secretary of Defense called him long-distance in Detroit in April, 1954, and asked him to come to Washington, which he did the next day, and offered him the post of general counsel for the Defense Department.

The Pentagon lawyers have found his legal opinions extremely well argued and very superior. He was involved in the McCarthy hearings in the Peress case and was a tower of strength to the Army then.

He angered McCarthy when he openly laughed at the Senator in a hearing. McCarthy demanded to know whether John Adams, then Army counsel, would be permitted to "testify freely" about the promotion of Dr. Irving Peress. Brucker laughed at the question, and McCarthy, angered, said: "There's nothing funny about it, Mr. Brucker. . . . You may laugh at it but I will not." Brucker chuckled again and told the Senator that a presidential directive would not permit Adams to give certain information to the Senator was seeking. One of Brucker's civilian associates says of him that "he combines skills and qualities rare both singly and in combination. He has had legal training and extensive experience in legal matters in relation to Government policies. His large experience here has been in a difficult time. He has a judicious and considerate temperament and gets into the bottom before giving an answer."

An Example of Dignity.

The new Army head is an interesting companion. He is remarkably alert and reacts to every stimulus. At the same time, he is fully conscious of the dignity of his position. On a recent European trip, when an honor guard was turned out for him he was very much pleased and inspected it minutely. At the Nuremberg Palace of Justice where the war crimes trials were held, he was enthralled and asked his guide numerous searching and acute questions.

How does he feel about the task he is taking over? He told the Post-Dispatch that he approached it humbly, fully aware of the great men who had preceded him and of the great institution he will head.

"The Army," he said, "is a magnificent organization tempered in great deeds for the 175 years of its existence. It calls for the best men who get and the Army deserves the best I have." "I am impressed," he continued, "with the sense of urgency shown in the Army in Europe, where I have seen it recently. If the same sense exists over the world, and I know it does, I am confident that the Army will be the safety of our country. I have a group to work with I am proud of."

Brucker is a sturdy man 5 feet, 10 inches tall. In the Pentagon he has been a hard and cheerful worker, putting in six days a week on his job. He avoids the Washington social life to the best of his ability and has put a limit of two weeks on dinners and parties he will accept.

He used to play golf—badly, he says—but has not touched a club since he came to Washington. He likes to swim, his principal sport now, and walk with Mrs. Brucker. He was born in Saginaw, Mich., June 23, 1894, the son of Ferdinand Brucker, who was a Democratic Congressman in 1897-98. He says he has been interested in politics since he was a boy. He graduated from the University of Michigan in 1916, got into World War I. He fought as a lieutenant in the Meuse-Argonne and St. Mihiel battles, earning a Silver Star, more difficult to get than than now.

His colonel urged him to get into politics, which he did, becoming a prosecuting attorney, assistant attorney general of Michigan and finally Governor. He returned to his law practice after the Democratic sweep of 1932 had removed him from office. He is a partner in a large law firm and is renowned as a trial specialist. He is now chairman of the American Bar Association's committee on professional ethics.

His previous acquaintance with Secretary Wilson was entirely social. His appointment as Secretary of the Army is a tribute to the high regard he has earned on all sides in the Pentagon.

BRITAIN REPORTED PLANNING LIMITED CYPRUS SELF-RULE
LONDON, June 27 (AP)—Britain is planning to offer Cyprus limited self-rule in a new effort to stem the tides of revolt rising in the Mediterranean island colony, government sources said tonight.

Prime Minister Eden's cabinet is expected shortly to approve the plan aimed at paving the way for the Greek- and Turkish-descended islanders, who form most of the Cyprus population, to eventually rule themselves and choose their political future.

At the same time new police measures are being taken in the hope of crushing the campaign of violence and propaganda against Britain's colonial administration in Cyprus. Britain today registered displeasure over an Athens radio broadcast charging it incited the people of Cyprus to revolt against British rule.

PEARSON
Senator Long Tries to Defeat
Democrats on Hell's Canyon

His Father, Huey Long, Fought Power Companies, but Son Sides With Utility Combines.

By DREW PEARSON

(Copyright, 1955.)

WASHINGTON.

SENATOR RUSSELL LONG (Dem.), Louisiana, did his best to defeat his fellow Democrats in a bitter closed-door meeting of the Senate Public Works Committee when it voted last week on the one remaining big undeveloped power site in the United States, Hell's Canyon.

With all other easily developed power sites already built, Hell's Canyon on the Snake river is of crucial importance to Oregon, Washington and Idaho. The Eisenhower Administration has favored its development by the Idaho Power Co. The Democrats, with the exception of Russell Long, have favored development by the Government, on the ground that rivers and works of nature belong to the people, not private power companies.

Long, whose father, Huey Long, the late Kingfish of Louisiana, battled against the power companies, has voted with the power companies. When the Dixon-Yates project was up for debate last summer, Long cast his vote against the Democrats and for the power lobby.

When the secret meeting of the Senate Interior Committee opened last week, Long at first sat silent. Six Republicans bitterly denounced Government operation of Hell's Canyon—including Milliken of Colorado, Watkins of Utah, Dworshak of Idaho, Barrett of Wyoming. The only Republican who did not take a stand was Kuchel of California. Kuchel spoke on the subject, but he did not definitely commit himself.

All the Democrats present except Long, urged that Hell's Canyon be developed by the Government. Long sat grim and silent.

Finally, with Senator Murray of Montana absent in Geneva attending the international labor conference, Acting Chairman

Impressive Air
Show for Nehru
Over Moscow

150 Newest Red
Aircraft Flown,
Some Long-Range Types.

By STEWART ALSOP

MOSCOW.

LAST Tuesday there was an impressive display here of Soviet technological achievement. On the morning before the reception for Indian Prime Minister Nehru in the Moscow stadium, between 150 and 200 of the newest type Soviet jet aircraft were flown over Moscow.

There is no available breakdown here of the number and type of planes flown, but there were numerous large new turbo-prop bombers of the type believed adapted for air refueling. There were particularly large flights of the two-engine medium bomber known in the West as the Badger, and there were large flights of fighter aircraft, including the advanced type known in the West as the Farmer.

The very large four-engine bomber known in the West as the Bison was not observed on Tuesday, but flights of a dozen or so of this aircraft, perhaps the most impressive Soviet achievement in the field of airpower, have been observed on more than one occasion since the now famous May flights.

More Planes Than Usual.
The Tuesday flights were exceptional only that more planes were flown than usual. Flights of the new Soviet jet planes, usually at around 11 o'clock in the morning or around 4 o'clock in the afternoon, have become almost routine in recent weeks. These flights are presumably in preparation for the display of Soviet airpower scheduled for Red Air Force day. The date for Red Air Force day has not been set, but it is expected to take place on a Sunday early in July.

Any attempt to interpret the reasons for the overflights is speculative, but what is sometimes overlooked in Washington is that these flights are witnessed not only by a comparatively handful of foreigners but by millions of Soviet citizens in this metropolis.

By a concentrated propaganda campaign, the Soviet people have become profoundly convinced that the peace will never be broken by the Soviet Government but only by foreign aggressors. The overflights pro-

Congress Seizing Initiative
From Eisenhower on Loyalty

Tardiness and Reluctance of Administration to Thoroughly Review Program Gives Capitol Hill Its Chance.

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON.

CONGRESS is in the act of taking from President Eisenhower the initiative to reform the Government's employee security program.

Tardiness and reluctance of the Administration to recognize that enough has gone wrong in carrying out the President's Security Directive No. 10450 to make a thorough review of the entire program imperative have created a vacuum which Congress is rushing to fill.

This is exactly what Mr. Eisenhower, as he stated in his first message to Congress in January 1953, hoped to avoid. The President stressed that the constitutional responsibility for policing the employees of the executive branch rested squarely with the President.

That was also President Truman's view. But because Congress decided that the Truman Administration was not acting with sufficient care and vigor to protect the Government from disloyal employees, it took the initiative from the White House and carried out an investigation which overshadowed anything the President was doing. Mr. Truman made the mistake of calling this congressional investigation a "red herring."

Different Reasons.
Now Congress is at the point of doing the same thing for different reasons. Because the Senate investigating committee and the House judiciary committee have decided that the Eisenhower Administration is not acting with sufficient care and vigor to protect Government employees from unfairness and injustice, Congress is almost certainly going to impose upon the White House an investigation that the White House has long resisted.

There is still a fair possibility that the President may recapture the responsibility, although, because the President's advisers are themselves divided on the matter, the outcome is very uncertain.

The purpose of the resolution which has now passed the two Congressional committees — at Democratic initiative but with strong Republican support — is to take partisan politics completely out of an authoritative, top level, detached re-look at the security program. To do this, Congress would create a 12-member commission, four of whose members would be appointed by the President of the Senate, four by the Speaker of the House, and four by President Eisenhower.

Opposed by Brownell.
This kind of investigation has been urged upon the President for many months by several whose views the White House usually values. But it has been strongly opposed by Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. His arguments, I assume, have been that the mistakes and shortcomings of the program have not been sufficient to justify any general review, and that it would be politically disadvantageous.

Several members of the cabinet felt otherwise but were unable to carry the day with the President. As early as last Jan. 5, for example, in the wake of the fire-Ladejinsky, hire-Ladejinsky debacle, Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson recommended to Mr. Eisenhower exactly the kind of investigation which Congress is about to authorize, except that under the Benson proposal the President would name the whole commission.

Nothing happened. Now Congress is acting in the face of White House resistance. Conceivably the President could get this executive problem back into executive hands by proposing to the Democratic and Republican leaders that a commission for reviewing the security program be immediately named by the President and be made up of leading citizens approved by both parties.

U.S. Slump's
Impact Small,
U.N. Reports

Effect on Foreign Trade Less Than Expected — Warn-

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.

June 27 (AP).

THE United Nations said last night that the world suffered little harm from the United States recession of 1953-54.

The U. N.'s world economic report for those two years said that recession "had smaller international repercussions than had been expected." It added that this had reduced somewhat the fear of future depressions.

"This is fortunate, since it leads to greater confidence in making trade commitments," the report went on. "However, since the United States recession was relatively minor and the circumstances in other countries may have been unusually favorable, previous excessive pessimism should not be replaced by excessive optimism."

"A high level of business activity in the United States is an important factor in maintaining imports and the resulting supply of dollars at a high level."

Dollars Need.
The report pointed out that countries outside the United States must have dollars, from United States imports, tourists and investors, to buy things they needed from there.

It noted that at the end of 1954, their gold and dollar holdings were 23.5 billion dollars, against 15.4 billion dollars five years before.

But it also noted that this was partly due to United States Governmental grants, investments and expenditures abroad, which exceeded two billion dollars in 1953 and continued as "a substantial crutch supporting international economic equilibrium."

The report said there were two ways to end the dollar shortage—increasing imports into the United States and increasing capital exports from the United States.

It called for "freer trade in an expanding world economy—expanding in all countries, with the highest rate of growth in the less developed countries." It suggested collective action through international organization in that direction.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Only Val Is Left

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

What hand is behind the scuttling of KETC? Apparently it is rigged for oblivion. The first manager, a creative talent they won't match again, was fired. The second, third and fourth managers are fired or resigned. The head of the art department was fired with an abruptness and lack of warning that is a disgrace, by direct order of the commission.

At a greater cost of the public's money than building a brand new tower the old WEW tower was moved to a new location and extended. Yet now the commission wants to economize by cutting the operating budget, although a door-to-door campaign for funds hasn't really been tried. (No one has come to my door for money, or to the door of anyone I know.)

For the past year KETC has operated on a budget that would last about a day around a commercial station, and yet the manager, in his fine new building, is expected to turn out programs with even less money and less staff.

Some remarkable and gifted persons came to St. Louis, excited and hopeful about the potential of television for beyond-school education, and in a makeshift basement and with little money turned out some programs that won national prizes and attention. Now Val, the Finder's dog, is the only hopeful employee left at Big Bend and Millbrook.

Rats in Salena Street

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The property next door to my home is infested with rats. Each morning for several weeks I have watched two or three rats come from the garage next door, through our wire fence and into our yard. As an example, this morning three rats merely romped in my yard.

I reported this condition to the Health Department of our city last week. I called again to learn why nothing had been done about this situation and was advised that there were no provisions in our laws to compel a property owner to clean up his grounds, and that if I wanted the rats killed off I would have to do it myself.

The point is, why is all the time and money and effort spent on informing the public of the rat condition in our city, asking for our help and appealing to our civic pride to clean it up, and when a specific case is reported, nothing can be done unless one is willing and able to clean up neighbors' properties as well?

If something isn't done soon, the rats will take over our neighborhood.

Following French Footsteps

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Reference is made to an ad in the Post-Dispatch placed by "The House of Seagram" in the June 16 issue.

Borrowing the sentiment of Father's day and graduation time sets a new low in liquor advertising. With its cunning approach a strong appeal for a new crop of whiskey customers has been made. America is fast following in the unsteady footsteps of France in the matter of alcoholism. It is stupid for us to say, "It can't happen here." It is happening here.

Perhaps the Post Dispatch is helping it happen.

Children Are Too Clean

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

This is a comment on your recent letter and feature article on "Junk Playgrounds." We have tried this on a small scale and find it an excellent idea, but I think it has a drawback which I think will hold it back from being successful.

We have boys 6 and 7 years old and a smaller child. With the beginning of vacation we quickly felt the need for better play facilities, the reasons being that when there wasn't enough for them to do they were on the sidewalks along with their friends, being a nuisance to neighbors and sometimes getting into the busy streets.

So my husband fenced off the back portion of our yard and let them play as they pleased. There were bricks, stones, wood, boxes, and the gang started digging some kind of cave or hideout. Anyway, they were safe, very happy and quite peaceful.

That seems very desirable to us, but immediately came the strong objection of other parents—the children got dirty. I honestly think that is the reason children these days are kept from all kinds of harmless play. Are we perhaps overdoing it in keeping the children clean and well dressed? I really think there is something salutary to body and soul for a child to get into old faded clothes, which won't be ruined, and get himself good and dirty. Anybody agree?

Light on Natural Gas

The deceptive propaganda campaign about natural gas regulation which is flooding the country is illuminated with the facts by Senator Douglas in an article in Sunday's Post-Dispatch.

The big oil companies that stand to reap the most in unregulated profits contend competition will keep the price of natural gas down without any federal regulation. Senator Douglas shows that, to the contrary, the unregulated price of natural gas at the well-head has gone up 120 per cent in the last nine years. Pipelines are now buying natural gas in the Southwest at prices 400 to 500 per cent of 1946 prices, he reports. He describes the nature of the industry which not only gives the pipe-lines no opportunity to shop for competitive prices but no incentive for trying.

Senator Douglas estimates that the no-regulation bills which Representative Harris and Senator Fulbright, both of Arkansas, have introduced, could be expected to cost consumers about $600,000,000 a year every year from now on. Missouri's inflated bill is estimated at $8,000,000 to $25,000,000 a year, Illinois's at $14,000,000 to $14,000,000.

With such large sums at stake, is it any wonder that the oil, gas and pipeline companies are reported by the Wall Street Journal to have raised a war chest of $1,500,000 for "public relations" to push this price-gouging legislation?

The propaganda claim that risk capital would not venture to develop new sources of oil and gas if regulation were applied at the well-head is demolished by Senator Douglas's facts. The natural gas transporters, which are also extensively engaged in exploration, development and production of natural gas, have prospered under regulation for the last 16 years although during that time the Federal Power Commission has ordered rate reductions totaling $43,000,000 a year.

It was Senator Douglas who almost single-handedly alerted Congress and the country five years ago when a bill sponsored by Senator Kerr, an Oklahoma oilman, sought to do substantially what the Harris-Fulbright bills seek to do now. That earlier bill was courageously vetoed by President Truman.

Senator Douglas believes "there is a good chance to beat the exemption drive if the people understand the issues." There are only about 175 big producers that produce 90 per cent of the natural gas sold in interstate commerce in the United States—but there are more than 300,000 consumers of natural gas in St. Louis and St. Louis county alone.

Those Representatives and Senators who think they can do a multi-million-dollar favor for the producers without the knowledge of the consumers who would be footing the bill may find themselves standing corrected at the polls. The appeals at Washington by mayors and legal officers who have come from many of the nation's biggest cities indicate the deep public concern over this issue.

But no one who buys or may be buying natural gas—or electric power produced with natural gas in steam generating plants—can afford to sit back and let the other fellow fight for him.

This is his battle, too. If he loses it, he will pay as long as it takes to reverse the defeat.

There can be little doubt of the outcome if enough consumers will demand that their Representatives and Senators require the Federal Power Commission to regulate the price of natural gas at the well-head as the Supreme Court of the United States ruled last year the law requires.

Too Important for Politics

The State Tax Commission's new check of farm land assessments in St. Louis county confirms a finding that they are grossly unfair.

The Commission's comparison of the 1954 sales price of 263 individual transactions with the assessment figures for 1955 tax purposes disclosed that assessments ranged from a mere 2 per cent of market value to more than 100 per cent. On the average the assessment ran to 15.65 per cent.

This means that some property owners are paying through the nose; that they are carrying their own tax burden and the other fellow's as well. This intolerable situation is full justification for the $855,000 reassessment that the County Council has so wisely authorized.

And it suggests that it is high time St. Louis county took the vital assessment function out of the hands of an indifferent elected official and turned it over to a governmental career man whose main concern was fairness and uniformity, not re-election. The $855,000 that the reassessment program will cost is merely part of the cost of the present horse-and-buggy assessment system.

This is just too important a function to be handled by a politician.

Sunday's doubleheaders were a blend of what you might hope for and what you might expect: The Cards beat the Giants twice and the K.C. Athletics took two from the Orioles alias the Browns of Baltimore.

A Good Reserve Is Needed Now

The compromise armed forces reserve bill, on which House action is expected this week, has its weak points but it still remains a workable measure which will greatly increase national security. The nation has long lacked the military reserves that it should have. This lack of a real reserve has become acute as the standing forces have been reduced during the last two years. It would be folly to allow this session of Congress to end without passage of a bill to create the reserve that the President, many Congressmen and most military leaders declare is necessary.

Representative Adam Powell, a Democrat who represents the Harlem district of New York City, wrecked the first such measure last month. It is conceded that he was well motivated in seeking to end the segregation evil that persists in many National Guard units in the South. But his amendment pushed regional opposition into the camp of other opponents of the bill. It insured defeat of the bill.

Now the bill has been rewritten by a House Armed Services subcommittee so that there is no mention at all of the National Guard. Although this was intended to avoid the segregation issue, and although President Eisenhower wrote a letter to Mr. Powell asking him to forbear and thus give the bill a chance to pass, Mr. Powell says he will push his fight even harder.

Unfortunately, there are other weak points in the bill. Outstanding is the new version of the plan to accept volunteers for a six-month period, followed by seven years in the reserves. It has been rewritten in a manner intended to satisfy Congressmen opposed to anything smacking of universal military training but there are grave doubts that they will be placated.

Nevertheless, there can be no doubt but that national defense requires passage of this measure. It will set up the reserve that is needed. The segregation evil can be attended to after the reserve gets on its feet. The Department of Defense can issue orders that will rout segregation out of National Guard units in the South just as segregation was routed out of the regular Army, Navy and Air Force. The main thing to do right now is to lay the foundation for strengthening national defense.

Closing on a High Note

No speaker at the U.N.'s tenth anniversary meeting in San Francisco used his opportunity any better than the final one—Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium, the first president of the U.N. General Assembly a decade ago. Calling for total disarmament for all the nations of the world, Mr. Spaak closed his eloquent address by reading the memorable words of the preamble to the U.N. charter with its appeal to the conscience of mankind. Then said Mr. Spaak: "So be it!"

The Spaak address happily was in the spirit of the final sessions. Representatives of the 60 nations in attendance not only re-dedicated themselves to the principles of the charter which President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles held aloft in their addresses. The world diplomats also formally pledged themselves to work for "a real disarmament plan."

Thus these 60 nations are committed to doing all they can to assist the disarmament hopes of the Eisenhower Administration, now at work on a disarmament plan with former Gov. Stassen in charge. The U.N. members also are in effect committed to joining hands with the President's proposal to turn atomic energy away from destructive ends to peaceful uses for the benefit of mankind. United States citizens may be glad their Government is in front on both.

As for the Soviet attack on a United States naval plane—the incident that so disturbed the U.N. sessions Friday and Saturday—the Russians have already formally expressed regret and offered to share the damages. If the Red gunners shot down an American plane over neutral territory, then Moscow should pay full costs. The Communists, however, insist that our plane was "within Soviet air space." The fact is of course that modern military planes move so fast that along boundaries where a plane is will be only a matter of a few seconds.

Cannot this attack, in which fortunately no lives were lost, be the occasion for both nations in the Bering Strait area, to make treaty certain to keep their planes on their side of the line?

Only the Children Will Suffer

Do the 18 Democratic Aldermen who are sponsoring the bill to repeal the fluoridation ordinance realize that the only persons who will be hurt by the repealer are the city's children?

If so, then they are disregarding the welfare of their constituents. Fluoridation is the cheap, safe and effective public health method of reducing dental decay in boys and girls. It will help parents save substantial sums that otherwise would go for dental bills.

But if the Aldermen do not realize what the repealer would do to the dental health of the community's youngsters, then perhaps they had better hold their fire until they have a talk with Mayor Tucker. He has been a strong supporter of the program. More important, he has acted on the considered advice of a committee of St. Louis's leading physicians.

Not only did this imposing committee recommend fluoridation for St. Louis. It told the Mayor that the program would be the greatest public health advance here since passage of the anti-smoke ordinance. What scientific advice did the 18 Democrats get before offering the repealer?

The fluoridation ordinance was adopted by a 23-to-3 vote last October. Most of the aldermen who now are against it voted Yes last fall. Why have they changed their minds? Do they have doubts as to fluoridation's overwhelming scientific backing? Or have they been deceived?

Dr. George F. Lull, secretary and general manager of the American Medical Association, wrote in the June issue of Today's Health, A.M.A. publication: "The unscrupulous opponents of fluoridation have spread the impression that the American Medical Association did not endorse the procedure. The facts are that it did and that it stands by its endorsement."

Parents will hope that the Democratic Aldermen will not push ahead with a piece of legislation that will cost them money and adversely affect the dental health of their children. The repealer is a bad bill, and it ought to be killed.

Good Cause Loses in Illinois

Responsibility for the defeat of the proposed Illinois constitutional amendment to modernize the court system of Illinois rests very heavily on the Democrats in the House at Springfield. Representative Paul Powell of Vienna, former Democratic Speaker, put the motion to table which carried 74 to 70. Democratic Representative Carl Preibis of Pana called the plan "un-American." When the roll was taken 61 Democrats voted against it and only 14 Republicans. Most of the Republicans soundly supported the stand of Gov. Stratton who in turn was backing the handiwork of the Illinois and Chicago bar associations.

No system of choosing judges is perfect. Every method has its disadvantages. The plan proposed in Illinois was much like that now in use in Missouri under our nonpartisan system that combines aspects of the elective and appointive methods. Missouri's experience is that this system is far better than the old one in which unscrupulous political bosses staked judges and forced candidates to bow to them for support.

If the Missouri plan is un-American, as Representative Preibis seems to say, a lot of people in Missouri are mighty slow finding it out. Our guess is that leaders of the bar in Illinois will resume their efforts in the next Legislature. After all, it took quite a while to get the Missouri reform through. In fact, when the boys at Jefferson City would not pass it, the issue was taken to the voters by initiative petitions. This defeat at Springfield can and should be a stepping stone to ultimate victory.

Mistake in Margarine

Some margarine manufacturers are treading on dangerous ground. In labeling and advertising a new mixture of margarine with butter, they are leaving the deceptive impression that theirs is a dairy product. The Food and Drug Administration has been after them for the labeling offense, and the Federal Trade Commission for the misleading advertising.

When the margarine industry finally got a fair break in federal law five years ago, it was only after many years of effort. One of the arguments which the dairy industry had used most effectively in lobbying for discriminatory laws against margarine was that consumers might be misled into mistaking the product for butter.

If the margarine industry now gives substance to this argument in its own disinterest, it will have only itself to blame. The best insurance for a continued fair deal for margarine on the statute books is scrupulous adherence to the letter and spirit of the facts in labeling and advertising.

NO PEACE IN EAST ST. LOUIS' RAT ALLEY

Impatience Can Ruin Us

The Mirror of Public Opinion

People of West, considering time important, press for success at once, says West German chancellor; but time means nothing to the Russians, who are interested only in space; we dare not let our haste undermine our representatives in negotiations.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in an Address at the Commencement Meeting of the Harvard Alumni Association at Cambridge

I believe that we are justified in saying that the conferences just ahead are finding a more favorable climate than did the Geneva Conference of 1954 or the Berlin Conference of the same year.

The climate is more favorable for the reason that the West, the free peoples, are now stronger than they were previously. They have grown stronger through the unity which has been achieved in Europe by the conclusion of the Western European Union and by the entry of the Federal Republic into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

They have grown stronger still through the development of military defensive strength, in which the United States has taken the lead. On the other hand, I think it has become quite clear that the Soviet Union, in any case, is in need of a lengthy pause for reflection in order to meet the demands which are posed by her internal economic tasks.

During this period she will in all probability not be able to continue to arm in the way which she has until now, nor will she be able to consolidate her strength internally as long as her population suffers great want. And that is certainly the case. That is also true of her European satellite states.

Echo of Bandung

Moreover, at the Bandung Conference there was an unmistakable repudiation of Communism by the greater part of Asia; thus the Soviet Union can no longer reckon that the majority of the peoples of Asia stand behind her.

The prospects of an agreement among the peoples of the world have finally improved, due to the development meanwhile of atomic weapons and the H-bomb. At first hearing that sounds like an inherent contradiction; but I believe that the statement is correct.

The development of these weapons is so frightful that even the victor would have no occasion to enjoy his victory.

I think it is universally accepted that no single great problem can be approached and solved independently. Therefore, the United States, Great Britain and France are right, in my opinion, in not attaching a definite program to their invitation to Soviet Russia.

In this way, the area to be covered by the conference will of course be exceptionally broad. It will require hard, long and tedious work. A great deal of patience will be necessary to accomplish something worthwhile and satisfactory.

Every Man Can Help

If, however, it is possible in this way to lessen world-wide tensions, all humanity will be profoundly grateful to the men who have directed these efforts and to those under them who have done the day-to-day work.

I believe that every individual in the free world can contribute something to the successful outcome.

If there is impatience at home, if considerable obstacles to the aims of the conference arise there, then the position of these men will be weakened; their own inherent strength as individuals will be endangered, as will be the strength which they must be able to muster in dealing with their opponents.

I think that the West should keep in mind one thing above all others at the approaching conferences: For the people of the West time is important and therefore they are impatient and they

The World Is His Stage

KNIGHT ERRANT, by Brian Connell, (Doubleday & Co., 255 pp., $4.)

Douglas Fairbanks Jr., actor and world citizen, is a person with divided allegiances. He is equally at home in Hollywood, London's Mayfair and in many places in between. This entertaining biography makes it appear that he is not sure what country and what profession should receive his undivided attention.

Real-life adventures have been more numerous than screen adventures for this son of a famous film star. Although Fairbanks has never won an Academy Award for acting, for his other exploits he holds among many other decorations the American Silver Star, the British Distinguished Service Cross and the French Legion d'Honneur and Croix de Guerre.

If the actor were an English citizen, he would even be addressed as "Sir Douglas Fairbanks," for he is a Knight Commander in the Order of the British Empire.

Most of his awards were received for his work done in command operations during World War II, when he was a Navy lieutenant-commander. Besides helping to plan landing assaults against the Mediterranean underbelly of the Axis, he served on North Atlantic convoy duty.

During the war he was also an emissary extraordinary between Washington and Whitehall, writes Mr. Connell. This followed naturally as the result of pre-war friendships formed with President Roosevelt, Winston Churchill and members of the British royal family.

Fairbanks has earned these friendships because he is a sincere and active believer in causes. Before America entered World War II, he served on the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies. After the war he worked for CARE. He is now a director of the English-Speaking Union.

The incurable romantic has also tried to get the White House and Buckingham Palace to create jointly an international order of chivalry, Mr. Connell writes.

Such an idea is entirely in character for him, as he sometimes wears a cloak and sword with his Navy uniform. Fairbanks enjoys his awards like a small boy or like an obsessed exhibitionist. Connell is not sure which.

The film portion of his career is given minor emphasis in this book because it seems that Fairbanks became a successful actor only to earn money and to prove himself successful to his father.

After finishing this readable account of Douglas Fairbanks' life, one still feels that the complexities of his character have not been fully explored. The surface study relies more upon anecdotes than insight.

Our Nation in One Volume

THE ADULTS AMERICAN HISTORY, by Leland D. Baldwin, (Richard R. Smith, Inc., $8.)

Dr. Baldwin's "Stream of American History" is one of the best popular histories of our country available to the general reader. For those who do not possess that two-volume work this shorter narrative may be warmly recommended. In some 600 pages it traverses the story of this nation from its earliest beginnings to its twentieth century assumption of world leadership.

Dr. Baldwin writes as a "pragmatic democrat," who may be said to "stand with his feet on the ground and his head in the clouds." This is another way of saying he believes ours to be a country of practical idealists who have proved ideals to be workable and productive of the greatest good for the greatest number. The author's mustering of facts into a continuously readable narrative compels admiration, and his subjective viewpoint never at any time obtrudes itself into the reader's attention.

'The Second Censure of Joe McCarthy'

WASHINGTON. IN THE SENATE LAST WEEK we saw dramatized once again how our democratic processes work and continually justify and renew themselves. It was a demonstration that might properly be catalogued in our history books.

Checked in this instance was the once rampant Senator Joe McCarthy. The torrent of fear and suspicion he stirred up for a time sapped our multi-armed trust and confidence in one another and in our institutions. A year ago the Wisconsin Senator was perhaps at his peak. He had become such an issue that he was made the center of a public inquiry, a daily television melodrama, because his assaults finally had reached into our Department of Defense, the citadel of our national security. Indeed, he seemed to be riding high.

Late last Thursday afternoon, this same one-faced figure stood at bay in the Senate, with only three others at his side. It was a tableau of utter defeat.

Repulsed by 77-4 Vote.

This was the disastrous end of a McCarthy adventure designed to challenge the President's conduct of our foreign policy in advance of the Big Four Geneva conference.

What happened might well be called "the Second Censure of Joe McCarthy." In fact the 77 to 4 vote was even more conclusive than the censure last December when his Senate colleagues condemned some of his acts by a 67 to 22 vote.

Here was the climax of another saga of our democracy. An inciting and disrupting figure finally was trimmed down to size—as our people have done periodically and so effectively—so that, in the end, he became the means of unifying us again.

We tuck him away on the shelf as an exhibit of what we go through with every so often.

A Few Courageous Men.

It took a long time, this McCarthy episode—it started back in early 1950, you'll remember. Many innocent persons have been hurt. Many claret feet were revealed among some upon whom we had counted as defenders of our freedoms, but a few Senators who early perceived where the McCarthy terror could lead and boldly spoke out about it, and to some newspapers which kept relentlessly at the McCarthy myth with facts and with interpretations of their meaning.

The courage of a few Senators finally waked up our people, and last week in the Senate we saw others speaking up and talking back to Senator McCarthy who never had raised their heads and their voices before.

We see confirmed now the forecast of some at the time of the televised Army-McCarthy hearings a year ago, which was that the exposure then of Joe McCarthy by Joe McCarthy eventually would lead to his downfall.

Half of the G.O.P. Stood By.

Those forecasts were based on the good sense of the American people once they get the facts and see the picture—and they got it then, for Joe McCarthy played Joe McCarthy straight. From that time his star began to wane. There was no better proof of this than the willingness of the Senate a few months later to follow the trail blazed by one of the boldest spirits—the venerable Ralph E. Flanders of Vermont—and formally vote condemnation.

Still, however, half of the Republican party stood by Senator McCarthy and against censure and, among them, the party's Senate leader, Senator William F. Knowland.

So, finally, after many vicissitudes, balance seems to have been restored. Joe McCarthy, once such a divisive influence in his party, has become the object to unite it.

Lyndon Johnson's Strategy.

The final showdown in the Senate, which displayed publicly to all our people the almost complete solidarity against Senator McCarthy, was the work of the Senate's Democratic leader—Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas.

He skillfully arranged the show of unity by bringing the McCarthy resolution before the Senate so it could be killed in clear and open view, once and for all.

He overrode the wishes of Senator Knowland, who preferred to kill off the McCarthy resolution in committee, but he was rebuffed in that maneuver by a strict party vote in the Foreign Relations Committee.

Our checks and balances seem to work out, with time and patience. It was encouraging to sit in the Senate gallery and see that proved once more.

'VAGABOND KING' AT MUNICIPAL OPERA

Sixth Year for Rudolf Friml's Operetta in Park Theatre.

Rudolf Friml's operetta, "The Vagabond King," first presented by the Municipal Opera in 1928, will be given for the sixth year this week at the open-air theater in Forest Park. Tonight's performance starts at 8:30 p.m.

The operetta tells of the poet-rogue Francois Villon and the band of thieves he leads, and how he became ruler of France for a single day. It is based on Justin McCarthy's play, "If I Were King." The book and lyrics are by Brian Hooker, W. H. Post, and Russell Janney.

Among the principals are four newcomers to Municipal Opera: Metropolitan Opera baritone Clifford Harvuot as Villon; Gloria Lane, who starred in Gian Carlo Menotti's "The Saint of Bleeker Street," as Huguette; comedian Eddie Bruce, as Villon's friend Guy Tabarie; and dancer Edward Stinnett, as the new partner of prima ballerina Patricia Bowman.

"The Vagabond King" will be the first production for new art director Paul C. McGuire, who has worked in 10 different operas as assistant to Rolf Gerard of the Metropolitan Opera. His sets will depict fifteenth-century Paris.

Friml's musical score includes such famous songs as "The Song of the Vagabonds," "Only a Rose," "Some Day," "Huguette Waltz," and "Love Me Tonight."

CITY PLANETARIUM PROJECTOR WOULD BE FREE OF TARIFF

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The projector for the St. Louis planetarium, to be built with bond issue funds, can be admitted duty-free if the city imports it from a foreign company, acting customs commissioner David B. Strubinger has ruled.

In a letter to Representative Frank M. Karsten (Dem.), St. Louis, Strubinger said a provision of the tariff act of 1930 exempts scientific exhibits from tariff charges if they are imported by a municipal corporation for exhibit in a fixed place.

Karsten had asked the Bureau of Customs for a ruling after learning that tariff rates on foreign-made lenses and mounting for the projector would increase its cost from $140,000 to about $200,000. The $100,000 planetarium will be built as part of the $110,639,000 city bond issue program.

HERBERT BARTHOLOMEW, FORMER ST. LOUISAN, DIES

Herbert Bartholomew of San Francisco, former St. Louisan and son of Harland Bartholomew, widely-known city planner, died of a heart attack Friday on a camping trip with his family near Placerville, Calif.

Mr. Bartholomew, 42 years old, was an attorney and former president of the San Francisco Planning and Housing Association. He was a 1937 graduate of Washington University Law School and earlier attended the University of Illinois. Before leaving St. Louis some years ago he was an assistant federal probation officer for the Eastern District of Missouri.

Surviving also are his wife, two sons, Harland II and Bruce, and a daughter, Lucy.

GRAHAM AND NIEMOELLER DISCUSS RELIGIOUS REVIVAL

DARMSTADT, Germany, June 27 (UP)—American evangelist Billy Graham conferred today with German pastor Martin Niemöller.

Graham said they discussed the reviving religious spirit in West Germany. The former German submarine commander who has been in and out of public controversy since he first tangled with Adolf Hitler 20 years ago, participated in Graham's first German rally last week in Frankfurt.

Graham drew 65,000 persons to the massive sports stadium in Nuernberg last night, the site of Hitler's biggest rallies. Some 5000 Germans and Americans stepped forward to make "decisions for Christ."

MRS. JOHN S. PERRY DIES; G.O.P. POLITICIAN'S WIDOW

Funeral services for Mrs. John S. Perry, widow of a former Republican committeeman and deputy constable, will be Wednesday at 10 a.m. at Kriegerhauser undertaking establishment, 4228 South Kingshighway. Burial will be in Sunset Burial Park.

Mrs. Perry, who had served as a precinct worker, died yesterday of cancer at St. Louis County Hospital. She was 57 years old. Her husband died in 1952.

EDWIN E. TRUEX FUNERAL WILL BE HELD TOMORROW

Funeral services for Edwin E. Truex, a supervisor of customers' engineers at International Business Machines Corp., will be tomorrow at 9 a.m. at St. Aloysius Catholic Church, 12124 Larimore road, Spanish Lake. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

Mr. Truex, 51 years old, died Friday of a heart ailment at Jewish Hospital after being ill since April. He lived on Old Jamestown road, St. Louis county. He had been with I.B.M. almost 29 years, starting there as a serviceman.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Marie P. Truex, a daughter, Mrs. Ralph E. Stanton Jr., and five grandchildren.

SILLIMAN EVANS DIES; NASHVILLE PUBLISHER

He Suffers Heart Attack After Attending Funeral of Friend in Texas.

FORT WORTH, Tex., June 27 (UP)—The body of Silliman Evans, publisher-president of the Nashville Tennessean, was flown today to Nashville for funeral services.

Mr. Evans, 61 years old, suffered a fatal heart attack early yesterday shortly after attending the funeral of Amos Carter, his longtime friend. Evans used to work for Carter on the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Mr. Evans, the son of a circuit-riding Methodist minister, was born April 2, 1894, at Joshua, Tex., a Fort Worth suburb. He attended Polytechnic College, now Texas Wesleyan. He went to work as a newspaper man after graduation.

He worked on newspapers in Dallas, Waco and Houston before going to Chicago, where he worked in 1916 for United Press, and later International News Service. He returned, at 22, to Fort Worth to become managing editor of the now-defunct Fort Worth Record.

The Star-Telegram absorbed the Record and Mr. Evans worked for a time as Washington political correspondent for the Star-Telegram. That is how he came to be close friends with Amos Carter.

Their friendship grew after Mr. Evans became a director of public relations for Southern Air Transport Co., a fledgling firm that developed into the American Airlines. In 1932, Mr. Evans and Carter worked together to obtain the Democratic vice presidential nomination for John Garner of Uvalde, Tex.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was the Democratic choice for President, and he and Garner won. Mr. Evans was appointed an assistant postmaster general, a job he held for two years. He left it to become president of the Maryland Casualty Co., of Baltimore.

In 1939, Mr. Evans bought the controlling interest in the struggling Nashville Tennessean and became its publisher. He fought his way out of Memphis and his political machine and the newspaper thrived.

Mr. Evans backed Estes Kefauver for the United States Senate, and Kefauver won. In 1941, Mr. Evans took a leave of absence from the Tennessean to become the first publisher of the old Chicago Sun, a job he relinquished in 1944 to return to the Tennessean.

Both of Mr. Evans' sons, Silliman Jr. and Amos Carter Evans, were with him in Fort Worth. In addition to the sons, Mr. Evans' wife, a brother, Henry Moore Evans of Washington, and a sister, Mrs. T. Edgar Neal of Tyler, Tex., survived.

71-YEAR-OLD MANSIONS ON LINDELL BEING RAZED

Two 71-year-old mansions at 3750 and 3756 Lindell boulevard are being razed to make room for an insurance company office building, Dr. William G. Swetosky, St. Louis dentist, whose hobby is the study of old buildings, said today.

The three-story brick mansion at 3756 Lindell, which contained 20 rooms, was built in 1884 and owned by Melvin L. Gray, an attorney. The poet Eugene Field often visited Gray there. In 1905 Gray's widow sold the home for $10,750 to Wilson P. Hunt Turner, who in turn sold it to Dr. M. J. Hopkins in 1914. Dr. Swetosky said. In 1940 the building became a hotel and was sold to General Insurance Co. of America last year.

The residence at 3750 Lindell was also built in 1884 and contained 12 rooms. It was built by Albert B. Gregory, a successful Illinois livestock farmer. In 1911 the home was purchased by Samuel M. Kennard, who operated a carpet firm. Kennard sold it in 1913 for $13,500. Dr. Swetosky related. The insurance company purchased it last year.

RIGHT TO ORGANIZE UPHELD, VIOLENCE DEPLORED BY POPE

VATICAN CITY, June 27 (AP)—Pope Pius XII told Roman railroad workers yesterday that no true Christian could oppose their uniting in strong organizations to defend their rights and improve their conditions of life.

"You are therefore acting fully in conformity with the church's social teaching when, by all means morally permissible, you vindicate your just rights," the Pope said.

"We said by all means morally permissible. It is necessary to remind you that acts of violence which damage the property and goods of others are not even contemplated by true Christians."

The Pope did not mention Communism by name, but he referred to a "cunning and divisive activity on the part of men eager to deceive the worker with false promises pledged to draw them away from the practice of their faith."

The railroad men had massed in St. Peter's Basilica to receive the Pope's blessing.

Middlecoff's 63 Finish Captures Western Open

272 Wins; Souchak Is Runner-Up

PORTLAND, Ore., June 26 (AP)—Dr. Cary Middlecoff headed for his Memphis (Tenn.) home today for a three-week rest after pocketing the $2400 top money in the fifty-second annual Western Open here.

The golfing dentist came from behind with a dramatic 29-34-63 in the final round yesterday to overtake Mike Souchak, husky Durham (N.C.) pro, who had led him by four strokes after 34 holes.

Middlecoff, at 272, was 16 strokes under par for the four-day, 72-hole event.

Middlecoff, a Mississippi University alumnus playing out of Klamath Lake, N.Y., tied the Portland Golf Club course's 18-hole record as he clubbed out nine birdies.

Souchak, an ex-Duke University football player, battled hard to catch Middlecoff after he ended the first nine holes in 34 to find that the dentist was one stroke ahead of him.

But the powerful Souchak's approaches and putts were not sharp enough. He finished with 24-35-69 for a total of 274.

Gene Littler, Palm Springs, Calif., and Bob Rosburg, San Francisco, tied for third at 275.

Littler, an ex-national amateur champion, came in with 23-34-67 for the round. Rosburg shot 36-32.

The handsome Memphis pro launched his assault on the fast, straight 6604-yard par 72 layout at the third hole.

There, he got his first birdie with a long approach shot and an 18-inch putt.

At the end of nine he was six under par. That's when most of the crowd estimated at 5000 switched from other favorites such as Sam Snead and Souchak to swell Middlecoff's gallery and cheer him on.

He birdied three of the first eight final holes. Then at the eighteenth, on which he had suffered over-par experiences in two earlier rounds, Middlecoff played it safe to get a par 5.

In the clubhouse the Memphis ace said he never thought he had a chance to win until he birdied the ninth hole and then learned that Souchak, playing behind him, was not doing so well.

Knew I Had a Chance!

"I had started out only with the idea of getting as high among the money winners as I could," he said. "After the ninth I knew I had a good chance if I played it tight and didn't get into a lot of trouble, particularly

THE WINNERS

PORTLAND, Ore., June 27 (AP)—Scores of the top golfers in the Western Open championship and the amounts of money won by each:

1. Cary Middlecoff, Klamath Lake, N.Y., 69-29-34-63—$2400.

2. Mike Souchak, Durham, N.C., 69-29-35-69—$1800.

3. Gene Littler, Palm Springs, Calif., 69-29-34-67—$1300.

3. Bob Rosburg, San Francisco, 69-29-34-67—$1300.

5. Billy Maxwell, Odessa, Tex., 70-32-70-67—$700.

6. Ralph Blomquist, Bunker Beach, Okla., 69-29-35-69—$600.

7. Don Douglas, Newark, Del., 71-31-72-68—$500.

8. Dave Emswiler, Athens, O., 71-31-72-68—$400.

9. Gardner Dickinson Jr., St. Andrews, Ill., 72-30-72-68—$300.

10. Sam Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., 73-30-72-68—$200.

11. Julius Boros, Mid Pines, N.C., 71-31-72-68—$100.

12. Doug Ford, Klamath Lake, N.Y., 71-31-72-68—$100.

13. Bud Haskins, Apple Valley, Calif., 73-31-67-72—$100.

14. Smiley Queen, Los Angeles, 70-74-68-72—$100.

15. Bo Winick, Oklahoma City, 70-75-68-71—$100.

16. Arnold Palmer, Longtown, Pa., 76-66-70-72—$100.

17. Ted Kroll, Tulsa, N.Y., 72-70-67-76—$100.

18. Paul O'Leary, Birmingham, N.D., 69-71-73-72—$100.

If Mike kept having difficulty, I just played a cautious game and hoped for the best.

Middlecoff, who won the recent Masters at Augusta, Ga., said his next tournament will be at Milwaukee, Wis. in three weeks.

Souchak played well, birdying five holes, but he went over par on two others.

Rosburg's 32 bettered Middlecoff's back nine score but he had a bad start, with a 7 on the par four second hole, was too much for him to erase.

Snead disappointed his usual big gallery by taking a 74 to wind up in a tie with five others for tenth at 283.

Fifth place and $1,000 went to Julius Boros, Mid Pines, N.C., with 276.

Purdue Golfer Wins In Collegiate Final

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 27 (UP)—Nineteen-year-old Joe Campbell of Purdue, who kept the pressure relentlessly on his rival, reigned today as the new king of college golf.

The stocky Purdue star, trailing after the first 18 holes of the final round Saturday, came from behind yesterday to whip long-hitting John Garrett of Rice, 2 up.

Schoendienst Leads Second Basemen In All-Star Game Poll

CHICAGO, June 27 (UP)—George Kell, Chicago White Sox veteran, took over the American League's third base lead in the all-star baseball poll.

Kell, 42, passed Jim Finigan of the Kansas City Athletics by 11,715 votes in the latest tabulation. Kell now has 562,946 votes while the 26-year-old Finigan has piled up 551,231.

In the National League, Stan Musial trails Ted Kluszewski, 571,816 to 554,923, at first base, while at second, Red Schoendienst is the leader with 563,443 votes. Ken Boyer has 92,107 at third; Bill Virdon 171,981 in centerfield; Wally Moon 151,283 in right and Bill Sarni ranks second to Roy Campanella among the catchers with 257,409 to the Dodger star's 589,622.

Balloting will end at midnight next Friday. Final returns, expected to reach a record height, will be announced next Monday.

Finletter Says Disarmament Would Give Reds Military Edge

Criticizes 'Unenforceable' Program Which He Believes Would Strip U.S., Allies of Atomic Power.

NEW YORK, June 27 (UPI)—Former Secretary of the Air Force, Thomas K. Finletter charged today that Western proposals for world disarmament would give Russia and Communist China "military superiority" in Europe and Asia.

Finletter criticized what he called the "unenforceable" disarmament program the Western powers have been urging. Such a program, he said, if accepted would strip the United States and its allies of all atomic weapons but would leave Russia and China with tremendous armies.

Speaking at a Foreign Policy Association luncheon, Finletter urged the United States to abandon the present program in favor of an "enforceable" disarmament plan.

Most Accepted. "Last May Russia accepted most of the proposals for unenforceable disarmament which the Western powers had been urging," he said.

"It is quite possible that some day soon we will find the Russians accepting all the current Western proposals. . . ."

This, he said, might force the United States to "refuse to carry through what they themselves have suggested."

Finletter said the "unenforceable" plan calls for "disarmament by stages."

"The first step would be the reduction of the so-called conventional forces."

The Western powers have suggested limiting the United States, Russia and Communist China to 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 men each.

The next step, Finletter said, would be for "the United States and the other countries to give up all of their atomic bombs."

Finally, there would be no enforcement of this agreement.

"The only protection would be the inspection system," he said. "Then, if the Russians broke the agreement we would have the right to break it ourselves and could start the arms race all over again, or make general war against Russia."

Russia, Finletter said, has accepted all of the Western proposals except the inspection system.

Remaining Difference.

"The difference is not at all unbridgeable," he said. "It is possible that the Russians may come around at any moment and resolve this final remaining difference between the West and the East."

Finletter then urged that the United States abandon the plan because "unenforceable disarmament agreements have been tried over the centuries and never with success."

"I think it is most unwise for the United States to be talking about a plan under which we give up all of our atomic bombs and still leave the Russians and the Chinese each with 1,500,000 men in their conventional forces."

"I believe that the effect of doing this would be to give the Russians military superiority in Europe and would give Chinese military superiority in Asia."

"I do not believe that an inspection system can catch all of the fissionable material the Russians can hide in their own vast territory.

"In short I believe we should drop this unenforceable idea and get back to the important task of trying to work out an enforceable system which would be acceptable first to the people of the United States and then, if possible, to the rest of the world."

Underground Fantasies

The Daydreams of Middle-Aged Men

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, June 27 (AP).

CURSTONE reflections of a pavement Plato. One trouble with life is a fellow gets too old to feel at ease while wearing a Davy Crockett hat in public. He no longer can openly act out his day-dreams. So his fantasies go underground in his mind. And they stay there, itching him mentally, for years and years.

In time they gradually grow smaller and smaller in scale. Haven't yours? Can't you remember when maybe you dreamed of running into a burning building and rescuing a beautiful lady? Or of robbing a great liner in mid-ocean and escaping by motor boat? Or of finding $100,000 in the street?

Today none of those daydreams probably flicker through your head. They don't even make sense as daydreams after 40.

If the loveliest woman in the world leaned her head out the window of a flaming dwelling, I'd merely stand there on the pavement and help her yell "Help!" I know my limitations. I wouldn't run up a flight of steps now to rescue anything except my social security card—and it would have to be in terrible peril at that.

IN MIDDLE AGE a man no longer pictures himself in his daydreams as a great hero or a great rascal. He realizes he no longer has the desire (or energy) to be either.

His dreams of glory come down to small daily dramas in which he sees himself mastering some ordinary social situation that has always frustrated him before.

For example, he has just got a haircut. The barber holds up a perfunctory mirror and asks, "Okay?"

For 500 times in a row in the last 20 years the victim has meekly murmured, "Uh-huh," and paid. But in his daydreams he suddenly rebels and says: "No, it certainly isn't okay, Tony. You got it parted wrong. There are at least eight hairs too long on the right side. And I told you to lift the sideburns, and you didn't. Want me to look like a sheepdog? Now get out your scissors and do the job right—for once."

The abashed barber bends anew to his task. When he is finished, our little hero steps from his chair with a crisp, "That's better!"

OR SUPPOSE you are on a bus making the long voyage home and the driver says, "Pleeeze move backin-nabus, Pleeeze move backin-nabus," and you try to. And a fat lady says, "Who you shovin', Gargantua?" Instead of subsiding in mumbled apologetic apology, you sing out loud and clear:

"Out of my way, fat lady. I'm going to get to the back of the bus if I have to carve my way through a wall of living flesh—and I do mean your flesh!" Well, the driver stops the bus. Tears streaming down his cheeks, he comes back, shakes your hand, and mutters, "Pal, pal—after all these years, somebody done it at last. You move backin-nabus."

I HAVE TWO SIMPLE DAYDREAMS MYSELF. In one I am cashing my paycheck and the bank teller asks, "Do you have any identification with you?" Instead of fumbling through my pockets, I merely fix him with a pair of steel blue eyes and tell him coldly, "My face is my identification in this man's town, sonny." He takes one hurried look, and cashes the check pronto.

In the other I go with a guest into one of the velvet rope restaurants, and when the headwaiter snootily asks if I have a reservation, I tell him: "We have a reservation? Look, mister, I don't even own an Indian. Now quit stalling and show us a table."

Overcome by this bit of swift repartee, he drops his velvet rope and steers us to the best seats in the place. But, of course, this is probably the average man's most common daydream. He wakes up to find his house is finally paid for and doesn't need any repairs, his car is paid for and there isn't even a knock in the motor. He sits down to breakfast and neither his wife nor the kids hit him for money. He reaches in his pocket and is pleasantly amazed to find he still has $10 left—and it's only two days till payday. Man, that's real dreaming!

Rabies Serum

By Glen R. Shepherd, M.D.

ARE there stray dogs in your community? If so, do you know that rabies may be threatening you, your child, or your dog or cat?

Rabies hides in stray dogs and cats as well as in most wild animals. But dogs and cats are the only animals most city dwellers are exposed to. Stray animals are those without owners to immunize and protect them. As Dr. J. Basil Hall of Florida succinctly puts it, "A stray dog, unfriendly and destroyed, ceases to be a problem."

A recent rabies outbreak in his county was entirely due, directly or indirectly, to a stray dog. It bit others, pets as well as strays. Some of the bitten animals developed the furious biting form of rabies, biting and endangering humans as well as pets.

ABOUT 20 PERSONS and at least 10,000 animals die from rabies in this country each year. Many of the human deaths could be prevented by organized community rabies control programs.

A local rabies control program would periodically publicize the simple rules to follow when a dog bites. These are:

Don't kill the dog—pen it up for 10 days to two weeks to see whether illness develops and thus whether it had rabies when it bit. Take the victim to a private physician immediately or at least the same day as the bite occurred. Take his advice regarding treatment, and don't worry—recently discovered antiserum and the fact that few dogs who bite actually have rabies make its prevention practicable.

JUST THIS YEAR, an antiserum against rabies has been put on the market for the first time. Many physicians do not yet realize it is available. Like tetanus antiserum, it is made from horse serum containing a concentration of antibodies against rabies.

If you or your child are bitten by an animal—any kind of animal—arrange for the animal to be confined and observed periodically by a veterinarian. Then see your physician. The treatment depends upon the circumstances. A bite occurs any time the skin is broken by teeth.

Outdoor Cooking Is a Man's Job

He Should Be Permitted to Do the Work Without Kibitzer's Help

By Helen Evans Brown and James A. Beard

Second installment from the book, "Outdoor Cookery," just published by Doubleday & Co., Inc. The authors are two of America's leading authorities on cooking outdoors.

WE have two definite opinions about cooking outdoors with charcoal.

It is primarily a man's job. A woman, if she's smart, will keep it that way. Most men love it for it gives them a chance to prove that they are, indeed, fine cooks. The ladies can do the planning, the marketing, the preparation and the hostessing. But the man will do the actual cooking over the coals.

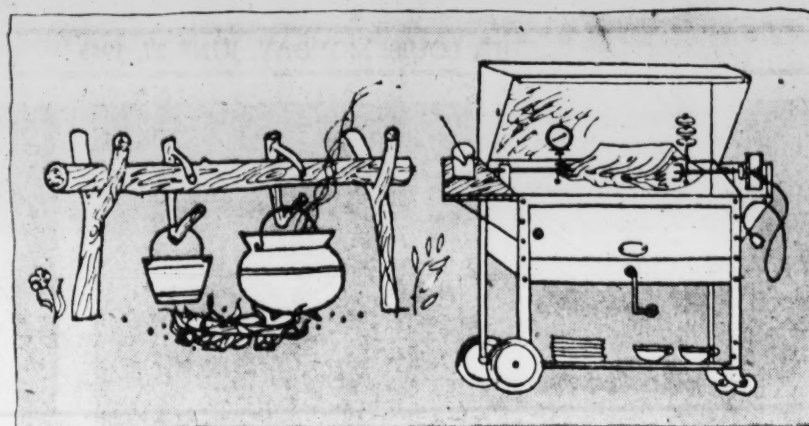

Our other opinion is that the cook should be able to do his job without advice. Nothing is more likely to spoil the sport than meddling meddles.

We have discovered a sure way to curb the kibitzer. Tie your apron on him. Then retire to a comfortable seat far away from the fire for a long, cool drink. That'll fix him.

There are people who just never become charcoal cooks. This installment is for them. Many families enjoy cooking and eating outside but are unable or unwilling to use a charcoal fire. The electric broiler and rotisserie is their best bet. Almost all the recipes for broiled and roasted foods may be used in this kind of electric unit. Watching a piece of meat turn in an electric rotisserie is almost as enchanting as when the fuel is charcoal. The difference is in the lack of charcoal flavor in the food. This deficiency some cooks attempt to overcome by seasoning the meat with charcoal salt or liquid smoke.

We reject this method because it has an artificial flavor. We see no need for it—most meats broiled or roasted in these infra red appliances are sensationally good eating.

ELECTRIC SKILLET AND FRYING PANS. They are comparatively new on the market. They are the most useful for outdoor dining. Anything that is to be sauteed may be done in them and in addition the deeper kind may be used as casseroles for casseroles, beans, stews, spoon breads and the like.

They are also invaluable for sukiyaki, a dish that fits beautifully with the informality of eating outside. They have controlled heat so that they require less attention than range—or grill—heated skillets or saucepans.

DEEP FAT FRYERS are another kitchen appliance that takes to the great outdoors. French fried potatoes and freshly fried doughnuts are two deep fried foods that go perfectly with outside eating. The first with any and all grilled meats and fish; the second for breakfast, lunch or supper served under the sky.

The deep fryer has other uses, of course: delicate corn fritters to serve with broiled chicken, tiny savory croquettes that make perfect appetizers, delectable beignets des fruits for summer desserts.

THE ELECTRIC COOKER is an appliance that will serve you well. For soups, especially those hearty soup-stews that are so right for outdoor appetites; for casserole dishes, the long—or short—cooking ones. The electric cooker and the electric bean pot, as well, will produce many main dishes or dishes that are perfect accompaniments for the yield of the grill.

CHAFING DISHES: We include here chafing dishes that are heated by alcohol as well as electric ones. The latter, however, are faster and more suitable for actual cooking, while the slower ones do nicely for keeping food warm.

Also the deep-type automatic skillet makes a fine electric chafing dish—actually better than most, because the heat can be regulated. You will find the chafing dish ideally suited for meat sauces, as well as for appetizers, meat accompaniments, and desserts.

PRESSURE COOKERS: Although this is not electric at least we don't know of an electric one, the pressure cooker is valuable for some types of outdoor cooking.

Campers, especially those vacationing at high altitudes, find they make cooking far easier and quicker, and save fuel as well.

and other cooks who are handicapped by a shortage of fuel find a pressure cooker of great value.

OTHER ELECTRIC APPLIANCES: To say that the electric blender and the electric mixer are especially adapted to the outdoors would be to exaggerate. But both are useful in the preparation of food indoors and many cooks use the blender for iced summer drinks and cold soups that are made on the scene.

The coffee maker is as useful outdoors as it is in, and the electric grill, toaster, and waffle maker are all ideal for breakfasting on porch or patio.

HOT TRAYS AND TABLES: These electrically heated trays, and the wheeled tables with their tops heated the same way, are necessities for outdoor service. Dishes prepared either inside or out can be kept at eating temperature. Dishes kept warm by candles serve the same purpose, but usually not so efficiently. They are, however, far better than risking cold food.

(Copyright, 1955, by Helen Evans Brown and James A. Beard.)

TOMORROW: The kind of steak for outdoor cooking.

Another down the block says she is gradually making some progress in persuading her brood that Davy Crockett washed his hands after killing that bar and before eating lunch.

The populace is gripped by its annual delusion—that it's possible to pack the vacation luggage so that only one suitcase need be carried into the motel at night.

The income tax people will desist from putting stripes on tax form packages denoting the approximate income of the recipient. And what with automatic garbage disposal units and basement laundry driers it's getting harder and harder to figure out how well the neighbors are doing.

Coloring Rattan Furniture

By Elizabeth Hillyer

USE TINTED VARNISH FOR CHANGE.

HERE'S an idea for changing rattan furniture, the kind made of the complete round pieces, or with peel, like this. Give it a new finish, this time in color. Instead of with paint, with a tint in varnish, which adheres better and more evenly. Add the tint, perhaps white, gray or a chalky shade of blue, pink, or pale green, to dull finish varnish that is really colorless—if it's merely called clear, it may still have a yellowish tinge.

There should be very little of the color so the coating is somewhat transparent, and it will have a pearly look—quite a professional job. Or you might like to make it the rich brown some beautiful new rattan is wearing this season. This, too, can be applied easily, the deep stain in varnish, again dull finished. Experiment first with the color by brushing a little on underneath.

MRS. F.F. "We're moving into a new home soon which has several wood walls. They are finished in a natural light color. Should we refinish them in a darker color to match the wood of our furniture, or can they stay the way they are?" Matching the walls to the furniture wouldn't be easy partly because the woods on the two are probably different, and a pleasant effect usually comes from the contrast of dark against light.

MRS. H.H.L. "We have wrought iron chairs and a glass-topped wrought iron table in our dining room. They are painted stone gray, and the chair seats are deep turquoise. The rug is green, and the walls are pale gray. Now we have the problem of needing a chest or sideboard in the room for storage. Would black be a good finish for it, and what color would you suggest for draperies?"

Much depends on the size of the room and the chest. A large black chest would look especially bulky and unrelated to anything else in a small room. A grayed wood finish would probably look better, and especially good would be one near the furniture paint color. The turquoise and green need repeating, and this can be done by including both in a patterned drapery fabric.

My Day

Cold War Strategy Board

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK.

IN HIS memorandum to the President, about which I wrote in my column the other day, Gen. David Sarnoff points out that we cannot allow our military strength to deteriorate. He says we should have a strategy board for defense in the cold war, equivalent to the joint chiefs of staff on the military side, with Cabinet status for its head. On such a board he would have the top representatives from the State Department, the Defense Department, the Central Intelligence Agency, and the United States Information Agency, working together with any other private or public group that might play a role in the over-all effort to win the cold war.

We should tell the world that we mean to win the cold war, he says, and that we are out to defeat not the Russians, but world Communism.

CONCRETELY, Gen. Sarnoff suggests large expenditures and expanding facilities for getting across what democracy really is and what it means.

He does not, however, point out one or two things that I think are vital in this campaign, namely, the general education of our own people to be able to formulate their beliefs and to strengthen their convictions in their beliefs.

This must be done through our schools, and I think it requires actual education of our children to know what Communism is. Our youngsters should understand that there is an ideal theory of Communism that is accepted in many Oriental countries and never has been thought of as something that can be put into practical operation. In the Soviet Union, however, Communism has become a dangerous and harmful ideology enslaving men's minds and eventually their bodies.

WITHOUT THIS KNOWLEDGE our citizens will be unable really to fight the evils of Communism, and they will not have the deeply rooted belief in democracy and the sense of responsibility for developing democracy in accordance with its highest ideals. And this is essential if we are to win the battle against the clever propaganda and tactics of the Soviets.

We have to develop in this country not fear of Communism but a confidence in ourselves in our beliefs, in what we have developed and are helping to develop day by day in every community of our nation. If, as a country, we have this confidence then we can communicate our sense of strength to other nations that are struggling to put down Communist groups in their midst. But if we do not know what it is we are fighting and are not sure of what it is we believe in, then we, too, will live in fear and be a prey to Soviet propaganda.

NOVELET: Gene Barry is what they call a "red-hot" property in Hollywood. His last 10 pictures were winners. They called him to play the role of Lillian Roth's husband in "I'll Cry Tomorrow." The exec producer, Dore Schary, okayed him, but now he had to get by the director. This was a cinch. The director and Gene as kids, struggled together in the dog days. But there you go anticipating the finish.

He turned him down.

A LOS ANGELES JUDGE, sentencing an actor for drunken driving, added: "Your career does not belong to you. It is held in trust for you by the public. Every dollar put down at the box office by a theatergoer is his investment in you. Your behavior on and off the screen is important to the movie fan. Everything you have, your income, your cars, your security, comes from him."

That's why the old saying goes: "Sober as a judge."

Broken Engagement

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

MOST men and women go through at least one broken engagement, and very few die as the result. Betrothal should certainly not be taken as a trivial and frivolous adventure as it sometimes is, but it is an equal mistake to look on it as a matter of life and death. I think Mrs. B. is taking the problem too seriously, especially when it is not her own problem.

She writes: "My daughter, who is a sophomore in college, has just been jilted by her fiancé, a senior she had hoped to marry after his graduation in June. He now tells her he is going in the military service instead. My heart aches for the poor little girl, and I want to bring her home, but my husband opposes this. Don't you think this is one time when she has a right to be with her mother?"

NO, MRS. B., and I'm afraid maybe she has been with her mother too much already. It seems to me you have an over-protective attitude which will make life harder rather than easier for her. Research of the American Institute of Family Relations shows that the average person has had one engagement and broken it before the one that ended in marriage. It is part of the process of trial and error by which we prepare ourselves for matrimony, and college engagements are particularly likely to be broken. There is plenty of evidence that these unhappy love affairs rarely do lasting damage.

Sociologists Clifford Kirkpatrick and Theodore Caplow studied courtship in a group of 230 men and 414 women at the University of Minnesota. They report that "the suffering experience of these students in the breaking of relationships which they call love affairs was not, as a rule, intense." Half of each sex said they did not need any period of readjustment after the break-up. They went right on as before. One-third of the men and one-fifth of the women said they needed several weeks to recover. Only one in every 19 or 20 claimed to have been unhappy for as much as a year, and some of those were probably unhappy persons anyhow.

UNLESS CONDITIONS ARE UNUSUAL, your daughter needs the same treatment as others need in such a situation. Don't smother her with sympathy. Let her feel that you take such things for granted and that, whatever happens, she can always depend on her parents to stand by her.

She should, by all means, avoid brooding and sympathizing with herself. A girl should remember that most other girls of her age have been through the same experience, or will go through it in the near future.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A YOUNG woman writes: "I have just been graduated from college and intend to start looking for a job. As this will be my first experience along this line, I would very much appreciate any pointers you can give me as to how to conduct myself when being interviewed for a job."

First of all, be neat in your appearance. Clothes brushed, shoes shined, hair neat. Nails must be clean. When you are asked a question, don't break in with your answer before your interviewer has finished the question. Don't be flippant or slangy. State your qualifications briefly and truthfully. Wait to be asked to sit down and let your manner be straightforward. Don't pretend to have experience when you do not, but say instead that you will do your best to learn. Tell a clear straight story and make it short. The important point is not to be nervous. Don't imagine the man who is granting you an interview is an ogre. Remember employers are human beings, too.

She's Looking Back at the Wild West

Mrs. Abbie S. Pope of Webster Groves Writing Memoirs—Recalls Trip to Montana 73 Years Ago

By Clarissa Start

WHEN Mrs. Abbie S. Pope came back to St. Louis from Helena, Mont., last spring, she rode to Great Falls to board a 3 a.m. plane, changed planes in Chicago, and arrived here at 1 p.m. that same day. She couldn't help contrasting the journey with the manner in which she first traveled to Montana 73 years ago. By back-wheeling river boat, stagecoach, and spring wagon, she, her mother and a younger brother and sister journeyed in short laps with stops at frontier hotels where man and beast used the same watering trough. The entire trip took exactly one month.

Recently widowed, 80-year-old Mrs. Pope was urged by her son and daughter to write down some of her reminiscences of her life when the west was wild, in order to take her mind off her bereavement. In her apartment at 330 West Lockwood, Webster Groves, where she lives surrounded by western pine furniture and family portraits, Mrs. Pope has been writing her memoirs. She hasn't decided whether to try to have them published or keep them for family records, but in any event, her manuscript makes interesting reading of a day that seems too remote to have been encompassed in the lifetime of anyone of this generation.

Her story begins in 1880 with the appointment of her father, George W. Shaw, to the post of auditor for the Alta (Montana) Mining Co. which had a smelter in the town of Wicks. There were no houses to rent in Wicks so his wife Eliza and the three children, Abbie, George, and Lida had to remain in St. Louis until one could be built.

In June, 1881, they left by river steamer for St. Paul, Minn., their trip carefully planned to make connections with one of the three or four trips a year by river steamer up the Missouri river from Bismarck N.D., to Fort Benton. The boat which left St. Louis was a three deck, double side wheeler, painted white, the finest on the river and very impressive to the three children, aged 4, 6 and 7.

"There were many tears and last minute instructions which seemed unnecessary to me," she recalls. "Grandma was quite concerned but Grandpa said, 'Never mind, Eliza is equal to taking this trip alone as all transportation is arranged and she knows exactly what to do and will watch the children.' ... I saw it all as a wonderful fairy story but when I looked at my mother's tear stained face, I felt a little sad, too."

She recalls the glamorous steamer dining room with gleaming silver and crystal, the delicious food, and the concern of other passengers when they heard the Shaws were going to far off Montana "where Indians were rampant and there was no safety for anyone." She recalls their dress—for the children, wash clothes and long stockings because of mosquitoes, and for her mother, a navy blue princess dress of silk, a bonnet, and a pailsey shawl.

The afternoon of the second day they arrived at St. Paul and stayed at a hotel until the next morning when they took a train for Bismarck. The train was a come-down, a dusty day coach with 30-minute stops for meals which the passengers had to bolt down before the engineer rang the bell. There was an overnight hotel stop at Bismarck and another boat, a one deck back wheeler with wood-fired engine.

They ate at the captain's table because her mother was the only woman, and they the only children on board. The river cut through cliffs and mountains; occasionally the boat stuck on a sandbar and all hands donned boots and heaved with crowbars to get it back in the stream. They ate buffalo meat, saw herds of buffalo crossing the river, and at every stop, swarms of Indians appeared from nowhere to gather around, finger their clothing, and sell trinkets.

At first the children were afraid but soon they realized the Indians were "friendly and peaceful, just curious and hoping for sales of their handwork." Mrs. Shaw had brought along torpedoes for the children for a July 4 celebration and these were new to the Indians who said, "Heap big noise."

AT Fort Benton they had to climb a high hill to the hotel; half way up they missed her brother, George. A crew member rushed back just in time to save George from falling in the river in an attempt to get a toy boat a crew member had whittled for him. George was ungrateful at being rescued, he'd lost the boat.

Hotel accommodations, she recalls, included "wash bowl and pitcher" in the room, and for dinner they had fried trout, canned tomatoes (new to them), and cottage pudding with gooey sauce.

In the morning they left by stagecoach, the body of which was leather inside and out. The United States marshal, learning they were making the trip, delayed taking some prisoners to Helena, and gave Mrs. Shaw a buffalo robe so they could keep warm at night. They left Fort Benton at 7 a.m. and arrived in Helena at 4 the next afternoon. Both horses and drivers were changed frequently as they kept up a fast pace, the driver sitting overhead with an armed lookout for protection.

At Helena, they drove up Main street (now State street) to the International hotel where her father was waiting. On both sides of the street were canvas-covered wagon trains, and the children saw not only miners washing sluice boxes for gold, but their first saloon. The hotel had one watering trough for man and beast with a tin can for a community cup. The next morning the family left by spring wagon provided by the mining company, and rode all day to cover the last 20 miles. There were no bridges, only trails for roads, and landmarks to mark the way. At nightfall they reached Wicks, their long journey over.

The Shaws lived in Wicks in a log house with beds of pine and straw, covered with featherbeds her mother had brought. There was no furniture except a pine table and a collapsible walnut rocker her mother had moved with her. The children carried water from a ditch, went to school atop a nearby mesa.

ONCE when her father wanted to go to Boulder, he walked 20 miles over the hills. On the way back he met a bear but the bear merely looked at his buffalo overcoat and apparently "decided he was some kin of his," and didn't bother him. The children thought it was very exciting.

The Shaws lived in Wicks two years, then moved to Helena. Abbie became a schoolteacher in Winston, Mont., where she met the man who became her husband, John D. Pope, a mining engineer. He, too, was a native St. Louisan and on comparing notes they found that his father, Judge Pope, had been her grandfather's lawyer and had settled a claim on some baggage lost on the Shaws' trip to Montana. After their marriage, they lived in Butte for 35 years and more recently in Helena, until Mr. Pope's death in 1953.

In 1954, Mrs. Pope returned to St. Louis to be near her son, John, a lawyer, who lives in Webster Groves. Her daughter, Grace, is Mrs. Andre La Bonov Rostovsky, wife of a Russian-born professor at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. Her son has two children, John D. III and Judy, her daughter, two sons, Egor and Oleg.

Her apartment is filled with furniture from her Montana homes, including many pieces she decorated with burnt stenciling. The walls are covered with pictures of her family—photography has long been a hobby of hers—and older family portraits, among them pictures of her grandfathers, Dr. A. B. Shaw and Hugh Menown. Menown was a tea and coffee merchant who, Mrs. Pope says, "roasted the first coffee in St. Louis," and she recalls, once caused quite a stir by advertising for a vigorous young man to roast coffee, with the words, "Wanted: Live Man to Roast."

Energetic despite her years, Mrs. Pope does her own housework and cooking, works regularly on her memoirs, writing in longhand, takes a daily walk, and attends the Webster Groves Presbyterian Church up the street. She has no special secrets for living long and staying young.

As long as you keep interested mentally, you'll never get old," she says.

Contract Bridge

THE average defender suffers from an exaggerated fear of losing a high card—having it finessed or ruffed or dropped by the declarer. In short, he operates on the principle that "a trick is a trick." Actually, in the practical sense a trick is not a trick, because one trick may be virtually worthless while another is crucial. Take the following hand for example. If West had been the usual sort of trick-grabber, the declarer's clumsy play would have gone unpunished.

North, dealer.

South opened the heart king, and South held up dummy's ace but took West's heart continuation.

South now should have led the ace and another diamond, giving up a trick to be sure of clearing the suit, but he evidently could see no reason for conceding a trick that might be saved by a finesse, so he led the diamond queen and let it ride. West, with no hesitation, played his low diamond. He knew, of course, that he might lose his king, but he reasoned—logically—that running a risk was certainly better than surrendering.

South played at his "success," promptly took another diamond finesse, and he was severely shocked when West produced the king. Now, instead of cashing two more hearts (which would have given South the chance to recoup by discarding his blank ace of diamonds), West made a prompt attack on dummy's remaining entry, the club king hold, but West doggedly continued with the club queen, and that was that. South ended up by winning two spade tricks, one heart, two diamonds and two clubs, and thus paid the defenders 100 points instead of scoring the equivalent of 400 points.

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

1. WHAT DOES A NORMAL, INTELLIGENT MALE LIKE IN A WOMAN? YOUR OPINION

Answer to Question 1. The five-year Stanford Marriage Study showed that men simply won't stand for a slovenly woman — towseled hair, slip showing, smeared lipstick, crooked stockings seams, run-over heels, etc. They dislike equally the show-off who thinks her figure is all men want. In a wife, a man likes a woman who is cheerful, enthusiastic, interested in his interests, sym-thetic, neither too much of a learner nor too self-sufficient.

Answer to Question 2. Yes, Dr. Wilfred Funk relates in "Word Origins and Their Romantic Stories" that Warren Harding campaigned on one word: Americanism. A reporter asked, "What do you mean by Americanism?" Harding replied, "I haven't the slightest idea, but it's a darned good word to win an election." Many subversive organizations claim they are for "Americanism." If we don't keep our heads and define our terms, we may be deceived into losing what we prize as "Americanism" — because the word works as well for un-Americans as for Americans.

Answer to Question 3. Yes, twice as safe as 15 years ago. The Iowa Driving Bulletin says the American auto driver has piled up billions of travel miles in that time, yet the death rate has been cut in half per 1000 miles driven. The death rate is now 7.3 per 100,000 miles; it was formerly 15. The bulletin also states that American drivers are far and away the safest in the world. This doesn't mean the death and accident rate could not easily be cut another half or three-fourths.

Marriage Today in East For Mrs. Childress Wick

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

MRS. LILA MARSHALL CHILDRESS WICK, daughter of Mrs. L. Wade Childress of the Chase Apartments, 4931 Lindell boulevard, and the late Mr. Childress, will be married in New York at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon to Dr. Robert Folger Solley.

The bride, who has been living in New York for almost a year, was Veiled Prophet Queen of 1935. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Laurence Neale in the Chapel of All Souls Unitarian Church in the presence of the families. Later the guests will reassemble at the bride's apartment, 420 East Eightieth street, for an informal reception.

The bride will wear a short Dior blue lace afternoon dress trimmed at the neckline with white grosgrain; a small white grosgrain hat and blue slippers. She will have a corsage of white orchids and carry a blue purse.

The entire Childress family is in New York for the ceremony. Mrs. Childress departed a week ago. The bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Turner Childress, are there from Albany, Ga., and her other brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Fielding Turner Childress, with their daughter, Lila Marshall Childress, from St. Louis. Wade Childress's son, John, who lives with his grandmother, has gone east for the ceremony and afterward will sail with Richard Baldwin Jr. for a summer in Europe.

Dr. Solley and his bride have deferred their honeymoon until July when they will go to Bermuda for a month. They will occupy her apartment.

A former student at Mary Institute, the bride was graduated from Westover School, Middlebury, Conn., and attended Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, N.Y. Shortly after her coronation in the Veiled Prophet's court she made her debut at a ball at the St. Louis Country Club. She is a member of the Junior League.

Dr. Solley, son of the late Dr. and Mrs. Fred Palmer Solley of New York, is a graduate of Taft School, Watertown, Conn.; Yale University and the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Columbia University. He served on the staffs of Presbyterian Hospital Neurological Institute and St. Luke's Hospital where he is attending physician. He is a member of the Elizabethan Club and the Century Association. In World War II he was a commander in the Naval Reserve.

Wedding in Baton Rouge for J. P. Butler.

MISS DOROTHY LOUISE BROWN, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Cecil L. Brown of North Plainfield, N.J., was married Saturday, June 18, in Baton Rouge, La., the Browns' former home, to John Parkman Butler, son of Mrs. Lucille Wood Butler, 232 North McKnight road, Ladue, and Stuart M. Butler of Ponte Vedra, Fla.

The wedding ceremony took place at St. James Episcopal Church, and the subsequent reception was given in the garden at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Holt Harrison, family friends.

Miss Patricia Brown was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Betty Jane Glasscock and Mrs. Fred Parnell, both of Baton Rouge, and Mrs. William Kuhn of New Orleans.

Stuart M. Butler Jr. of St. Louis served as best man for his brother. Ushers included Steven Kelly, also of St. Louis; Robert L. Brown of Lubbock, Tex.; Richard D. Brown of Plainfield, Tex.; and William Juhl, El Dorado, Ark.

The bride's gown was fashioned of chantilly lace over ice blue taffeta, and featured billowy tulle overskirts and a fitted bodice trimmed in seed pearls. Lilies of the valley and an orchid were combined for her bouquet. The bridal attendants were powdered in ice blue silk orquid.

The bridegroom's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kauffman Taylor of Washington, were there for the occasion.

After a wedding trip to Sea Island, Ga., the newly-married pair will live in Appleton, Wis., where Mr. Butler is associated with the Institute of Paper Chemistry. An Amherst College graduate, the bridegroom took both his master's and Ph.D. degrees from Iowa State College, Ames. The former Miss Brown was graduated from Stephens College and Iowa State.

Miss Flowers Bride of Robert M. Stroud.

OF INTEREST to St. Louisans was the wedding June 19 in Marianna, Ark., of Miss Gloria June Flowers to Robert Malone Stroud, son of Mrs. C. Malone Stroud, 6232 McPherson avenue, and the late Dr. Stroud. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Flay Clayton Flowers Jr. of Marianna.

The ceremony at the First Methodist Church was performed by the Rev. W. O. Serogin of Osceola, Ark., and the Rev. Garland C. Taylor. Later there was a reception at the Flowers home. The bride and bridegroom, after a wedding trip through the south, will live in Boston where she is a dietitian at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital and he attends Harvard University School of Medicine.

For her wedding the bride wore an ivory antique silk gown trimmed at the neckline and on the skirt with re-embroidered French medallion lace sprinkled with seed pearls. Her veil fell from a delicate crown of seed pearls and she carried a crescent bouquet of stephanotis, fleurs d'amour and orchids.

Bride's Attendants Wear Blue. MISS BARBARA STROUD, St. Louis, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Anna Glen Wells, Little Rock, Ark., and Mrs. Donald Tredway, Memphis, were bridesmaids; Miss Carolyn Sue Walters, Laurel, Miss., was maid of honor and Sandra Flowers, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. They were in pale blue embroidered organdy gowns and headpieces trimmed with valenciennes lace. They carried Shasta daisies tied with yellow satin. Flower girls were Mary Catherine Wilkinson, Indianapolis, a cousin of the bride, and Betts Driemeyer, Tucson, Ariz., niece of Mr. Stroud.

William Stroud of Boston was the bride's best man and their other brother, Bradford Stroud, and Leland Schoen, St. Louis, and Charles Flowers, brother of the bride, were ushers.

Sailing for Two Months in Europe

THREE ST. LOUISANS, FROM LEFT, MRS. CLIFFORD R. CRONINGER, MRS. THEODORE WHITE, AND MRS. HORACE E. HAPFEL, ON BOARD THE AMERICA JUST BEFORE SAILING FROM NEW YORK. THEY WILL VISIT ENGLAND, FRANCE, BELGIUM, HOLLAND, GERMANY, SWITZERLAND, AUSTRIA AND ITALY AND RETURN THE END OF AUGUST.

Miss Patricia O'Keefe, William P. Donovan Are Married in East

THE marriage of Miss Patricia Ann O'Keefe to William Patrick Donovan took place June 15 at St. Gertrude's Church in Maderia, O., a suburb of Cincinnati. The bride and bridegroom will sail Aug. 24 for Athens, Greece, to study archeology under Fulbright Scholarships at the American School of Classical Studies.

The former Miss O'Keefe is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. O'Keefe of Cincinnati. For her wedding she wore a white faille gown with a square neckline and full skirt.

Her short circular veil was secured by a small hat of lilies of the valley and she carried a spray of sweetheart roses and blue larkspur.

Mrs. James Hogan served as matron of honor in a delphinium blue taffeta gown. Her headpiece was a short veil held by a cluster of purple flowers. She carried a bouquet in purple shades.

Mr. Donovan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Donovan, 220 Oriskany lane, Kirkwood, who attended the wedding, had John Pienon of St. Louis as best man.

After the ceremony, performed by the Rev. Paul Rogers, a breakfast was given at the Hotel Alms in a setting of white flowers, blue larkspur and forget-me-nots. The bride and bridegroom will spend their honeymoon in Wisconsin.

The former Miss O'Keefe is an alumna of Summit Country Day School and received her B.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Cincinnati. Both she and her husband are members of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic society. After receiving his B.A. and M.A. from Washington University he went to the University of Cincinnati where he has been studying toward his Ph.D. for three years.

He also belongs to Omicron Delta Kappa and Kappa Sigma honorary fraternities. Among the out-of-town guests were the bridegroom's sisters, Miss Dorothy and Miss Elizabeth Donovan, and an aunt, Mrs. M. H. Erdman, Chicago.

Miss Mary Frances Dunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Dunn, 6358 Pershing avenue, University City, will sail July 1 aboard the Queen Elizabeth for a European tour. Miss Dunn, who is called Pat, will accompany a group of former classmates at Duchesne Residence, Purchase, N.Y., where she spent her college freshman year.

Among the young women will be Miss Ann Crossen of New York who often has visited here. Miss Dunn, an alumna of Villa Duchesne and Maryville College, now is a faculty member of the physical education department at Villa Duchesne.

Mrs. Thomas E. Mulvihill, 7056 Forsyth boulevard, University City, and her mother, Mrs. Charles E. von Brecht, will leave St. Louis July 4 and sail from New York two days later on the Swedish liner, Oslofjord, for Scandinavia. They will land in Copenhagen and travel through Denmark, Sweden and Norway.

Several Visitors Entertained in Webster Groves

MR. AND MRS. J. HANDLY WRIGHT and their three daughters, Miss Camilla, Miss Amanda and Patti Wright, concluded their visit here yesterday, when they departed for Nashville, Tenn., to remain until the marriage, Saturday, of Miss Ida Belle Davenport to their son, Mr. Wright Jr.

The Wrights, who lived here until moving to Winneka, Ill., last year, were entertained at several parties. Mr. and Mrs. Wright and Patti were houseguests of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis P. Ayers, 47 South Rock Hill road. Miss Amanda Wright was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Metcalf, 101 South Jefferson road, who had a small cocktail party for her parents. Miss Camilla Wright was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Heuer, 156 Gray avenue.

Dr. and Mrs. V. H. Laager and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hart Green, each had a dinner party for the Wrights while daytime parties were given by Mrs. Leonard A. Steger, Mrs. Kenneth C. Bell and Mrs. James S. Canavan.

Mrs. Frederic J. Delaute departed Thursday for Bayview, Mich., after attending the wedding, June 18, of her niece, Miss Margery Sewell Burger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Burger, 404 Yorkshire place, and Peter Sutton Winter.

Among parties for Mrs. Delaute, who formerly lived here, was a luncheon last Monday at Chateau de Normandie, given by Miss Adele and Miss Jeannette Stine, 44 South Gore avenue, with whom she stayed. Mrs. Delaute divides her time between Bayview and Sarasota, Fla.

The Rev. Wallace C. Bradley of Reedsport, Ore., who assisted in the Winter-Burger marriage service, has departed for the East. He was a houseguest of Mr. and Mrs. Burger.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Carl Robinson, 146 South Maple avenue, and their three children, Miss Susan, Dallas and Stephen Robinson, have returned from a several-week trip East. They attended Mr. Robinson's twenty-fifth reunion at Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., traveled through eastern Canada and spent several days in Washington. At Kew Gardens, L.I., they visited Mr. Robinson's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Kelly, and in Huntington, W.Va., they were with his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Thornbury.

Miss Camille Davison has returned home from Oxford, O., where she completed her freshman year at Miami University. She will spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Davison, 426 East Big Bend boulevard, and in September, enroll at Washington University.

Col. and Mrs. Donald S. Blair, 445 Selma avenue, have returned home from Madison, Wis., where they visited his sister, Mrs. John W. Haley, formerly of Webster Groves. They were accompanied North by his mother, Mrs. William R. Blair of Birmingham, Mich., who had been visiting here.

The Blair's son and daughter-in-law, Lt. and Mrs. Donald Blair Jr., recently became parents of a son, named Scott Garrison Blair. They are living at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, while he is stationed there with the Air Force.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur H. Manewall, 3 Drummond drive, Ferguson Hills, departed today for Teaneck, N.J., to attend the wedding of her cousin, Miss Therese Glutsch, to Thomas James Kelly, scheduled for June 30. The bride and bridegroom will go to Europe on their honeymoon.

Facial Hair a Problem to Women of All Ages

New Hospital-Tested Surgical Cream Provides Safe, Quick Removal Method by PAT CAMPBELL

The problem of embarrassing facial hair that confronts most women and girls today, has at last been solved—by a doctor no less. Seeking a faster, safer, and more efficient method of preoperative hair removal, he has developed a new hair-removing formula in cream form which has been hospital tested and approved. It is especially recommended for use on the face. The name of the new product is Pellex Surgical Hair Removing Cream. Recently introduced here, Pellex at last provides women with a safe, painless method of home hair removal. As quick as it is safe, Pellex is simply smoothed on the skin, allowed to remain a few minutes, then wiped off with a sponge or wet towel, taking hair with it painlessly. There is no pulling, scraping or irritating, and the skin stays smooth and stubble-free, a remarkably long time because Pellex works so close to the roots. Contrary to expectations, Pellex does not give off the bad odor one associates with ordinary depilatories. It is fragrant as a fine cream, so you can "de-fuzz" yourself right before an unexpected date without giving your secret away. If you have hesitated to do anything about embarrassing facial fuzz—hesitate no longer! Pellex is safe, quick, effective—and is sold on a money-back guarantee. Three cheers for Pellex!

Referred to: Pellex Surgical Hair Removing Cream. Available now at all drug and cosmetic counters. ($2.00)

Martha Carr's OPINION—

Dear Martha:

I AM in love with a girl and I think she loves me but she and I had some trouble and I told her some lies about myself. Then I told her I had lied and promised not to do it again. I had some more trouble with her and now her family won't let me see her, unless she sneaks out. She doesn't like to do that for fear someone will see us. I promised if she married me I would get a job and start saving money to buy her a home. How can I get her to believe me so we can get married?

READER.

You're not going to save much money for a home if you don't get a job so that's your first step. And you're never going to get her parents' blessing if you encourage her to sneak out and meet you. If you really love her you won't ask her to do that. I doubt if you'd have much trouble talking her into marrying you if you could only get her parents on your side, so show them that you can get and keep a steady job and they'll probably be a little more inclined in your favor.

Dear Martha:

I AM A SERVICE STATION OPERATOR. My wife keeps having bridge parties every other night. They become rowdy and some of the women become intoxicated. Kindly tell me what I should say to ask them to leave.

You've been far more patient than most men would have been. But talk to your wife before you order the guests out. Tell her you're sick and tired of her noisy company and you don't want them there anymore unless they know how to behave themselves. If that doesn't help, you may have to escort them out the next time they get rowdy, but you have a right to a quiet home and you don't have to stand for this, even if your wife doesn't mind the noise.

IN ANSWER TO Mrs. E: The forty-fifth wedding anniversary is the sapphire anniversary, the fifty-fifth, emerald. In planning the anniversary parties, be careful not to make such elaborate plans that the honorees will be tired and nervous. A simply family party is better if any one of the four you plan to honor isn't well.

IN ANSWER TO Mrs. R: If you want to take a foster child into your home temporarily and care for him until his parents can take him again, get in touch with the Family and Children's Service, 4643 Lindell boulevard. There's a great need for this kind of child care.

Send today for Martha Carr's free pamphlet, "Guide for the Bride," which will answer many of our questions on wedding etiquette. Please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Don't Say It

By Ruth Millett

“NOW what have I said wrong?” bewildered husbands often ask themselves after their wives take offense for what seems to the husband like no reason at all. But any woman knows there is marital dynamite in all of these perfectly “harmless” remarks.

RUTH MILLETT

“Is that what you are going to wear?”—asked of a wife who is all dressed for a party and a moment before was perfectly pleased with the dress she had on.

“I WISH YOU'D TEACH MY WIFE how to do that!”—spoken to another woman in front of the wife. It doesn't matter whether the husband is praising another woman's cooking or her ability to paint a room or make slip covers, no wife wants her husband thinking another woman could teach her anything.

“What are you being so fancy for?”—asked of the wife who has knocked herself out to set an impressive table for a guest she wants to think she hasn't gone to any special trouble.

SAYING TO DROP-IN GUESTS who happen by on the day the lady of the house has planned to serve left-overs for supper: “Don't go. Why not stay and have supper with us?”

Remarking on a photograph or snapshot taken of the wife 10 years and at least 10 pounds ago, “Boy, you certainly were a knockout THEN.”

Saying “That wasn't exactly the way it happened” when a wife has improved on the facts a little in order to make a good story.

Husbands who make these perfectly harmless remarks never seem to understand what their wives are upset about.

Tips for Teens

By Elinor Williams

SO he won't talk, eh? Some dates are like that... too shy to talk or else they just don't seem to know that a date is a two-some and that BOTH should make and enjoy the fun. A girl writes:

“In school, I seem to talk with girls all the time. I am able to talk with most boys and am noted for being a good talker. But when I get with a boy I like, I just freeze up and can't keep the conversation going. I am 13 and the boy I go with is quite untalkative. I try asking questions, but he answers with ‘Yes’ or ‘No’ and seems to cut the conversation. What can I do?”

Answer: Apparently this boy is shy—or tongue-tied—because he likes you, and this makes it harder to talk with him.

WITH THIS QUIET OR SHY TYPE of boy, it's a good idea to think of some questions in advance and also some topics that are likely to interest him. Then, keeping these in mind when you're together, not only ask questions, but also chatter a bit about these subjects yourself... adding, “What do YOU think?” or something similar to “draw him out” and get him into the conversation.

A monologue—with you racking your brain to carry on all the conversation—is no fun. Maybe as a last resort you can get him to talk by making him realize in a nice way that he's not doing his share.

You could ask, “Don't you feel like talking tonight?” If he says, “Yes, why?” you could reply, “You seemed so quiet...” Then continue the conversation and maybe he'll take the hint and do some talking, too!

Don't Be a Golf Widow

Betty Jameson Tells Women to Learn to Play the Game

By Dorothy Roe

NEW YORK, June 27 (AP)—ADVICE to golf widows: don't sit at home and think up cutting remarks to make to your par-happy husband. Instead, get a set of clubs and go out on the links yourself.

This is the advice of Betty Jameson, one of America's ranking women pros, twice winner of the National Amateur Golf Tournament and once winner of the National Open.

Though she is not married, Betty has observed the eternal war waged between golfing husbands and non-golfing wives. She thinks the whole thing could be cleared up if the little women would discover for themselves the fascination of the fairways. She has, however, a word of warning:

“Never let your husband teach you to play golf, any more than you'd let him teach you to drive a car or play bridge. It just doesn't work. Sign up for lessons with a regular pro, and learn the game right. Then when you are sure you have the hang of it, invite your husband out for a twosome, and be a golf wife instead of a golf widow.”

MORE WOMEN are playing golf today than ever before, says Betty, and once they are exposed to the game they usually become more rabid on the subject than their husbands. She estimates a million of the country's four million golfers are women—and their number is growing every day.

Betty is a natural-born golfer from San Antonio, Tex., who gained numerous amateur records before turning pro and hitting the tournament circuit. She was working as a reporter on the San Antonio Light when she was offered a pro job and has made all the women's pro tournaments for the last three years.

BETTY JAMESON... “NEVER LET YOUR HUSBAND TEACH YOU TO PLAY GOLF.”

She thinks she would someday like to coach women golfers, because she believes there is a growing demand for expert feminine golf instruction. She also has a yen to design correct golf clothes for women, and did design a Betty Jameson golf dress a few years ago, which was sold nationally.

“Most of the golf dresses you see around these days are too droopy,” says Betty. “I think the ideal outfit is a sleeveless one-piece knit dress in wool or cotton, or in summer a white shirtdress with a shirtdress skirt. Gene Sarazen likes to see women golfers in gray flannel skirts and cotton or wool tailored shirts. Most of the golf dresses on the market have skirts that are too full—they don't look trim. Bermuda shorts and a shirt are all right, too, but they're not becoming to everybody.”

WHEN YOU DECIDE to take up golf, advises Betty, don't accept advice from amateurs.

“Everybody who's ever held a club will offer advice,” says she, but don't listen. Amateur advice has ruined the game of many a promising golfer.

“The main thing is just to get the rhythm of the swing. There's nothing mysterious about it. Anybody who can dance or drive a car should be a good golfer.”

“And don't worry about playing golf with your husband. If you concentrate on your game you may find that you're a better golfer than he is.”

It's not the very fact that a person took the trouble to pay a V.I.P., even an insincere one, was in itself a compliment.

Every French child has to learn by heart La Fontaine's fable in verse about the crow and the fox, in spite of the disapproval of Rousseau. The last thought that La Fontaine was a bad influence, and that no child should read the fables, much less memorize them. But the French have never taken Rousseau's educational theories as hard as Americans do, and they go right on teaching about the crow which held a piece of meat in its beak, and was persuaded by the fox to drop the meat in order to display its beautiful voice.

Learn, Mr. Crow, that every flatterer lives at the expense of the one whom he flatters.

Rousseau thought that such a lesson was too worldly for young minds. However, it seems to me that practical wisdom is useful at any age.

I WAS TALKING about human motives with a woman who has had wide experience with V.I.P.'s, and we agreed that complete selflessness was a rare and wonderful quality. I said that when I saw a man or woman who was completely disinterested I really wanted to kneel and touch my head to the floor in homage.

“When you find one, move over, and I'll get down and beat my head on the floor six times,” she replied with a cynical laugh.

Well, they do exist, those people who are free from vanity or personal ambition or self-righteousness, and they exist in the most surprising places, where you would least expect to find them. They do not flatter, nor can they be flattered. I have been privileged to know a few, and so has my cynical friend.

The Dean Speaks Up

Selflessness---It's Wonderful but Rare

By Adele Starbird

“THE woman's a perfect fool!” I exclaimed. “She means well, I grant you that, but she is a fool!”

My friend looked amused. “She loves your column,” she said slyly. “She is making a scrapbook of the clippings.”

We both laughed. “Evidently I underestimated her intelligence,” I said. “She must be a very bright, very discriminating person.”

I remembered Voltaire's reply on the occasion of Casanova's visit. Casanova, like Boswell, spent a good deal of time visiting the great and recording their conversation in his journal. He had just come from the German philosopher, Haller. Voltaire inquired about Haller and said he had a high opinion of his writings.

“That's really very kind of you,” said Casanova with a little malice. “You are more generous than Haller. He spoke with contempt of your work.”

“Ah,” said Voltaire easily, “it is probable that both of us are mistaken.”

MOST OF US are susceptible to flattery, and the vainest person of all is the one who assures you that he cannot be touched by flattery.

At the other extreme is the writer who told me he didn't really care whether the compliments he received were sincere or not—the very fact that a person took the trouble to pay a V.I.P., even an insincere one, was in itself a compliment.

Every French child has to learn by heart La Fontaine's fable in verse about the crow and the fox, in spite of the disapproval of Rousseau. ## Calorie Clubs Are the Best Weigh to Lose

By Josephine Lowman

HAVE you a Calorie Club in your neighborhood? A few weeks ago, several newspapers carried announcements that clubs for fat folks were springing up in a number of places around the country, and that they were springing up with industry's blessing.

Large companies have discovered that overweight people are likely to become accident prone—that is, they are more likely to have accidents than their thinner fellow workers. Thus, in order to help reduce accidents which lower production and efficiency, companies actually are encouraging their employees to form reducing clubs.

OVERWEIGHT PEOPLE are more likely to be ill and stay away from work. When people in key jobs stay away from work too much, the work of the whole plant suffers. Hence, overweight people are not so likely to be given key jobs, or at least jobs that call for steady, dependable attendance.

Doctors tell us that more than 95 per cent of all overweight is caused by overeating. It is as simple as that. The rest of the overweight population have some medical reason for being too fat.

If you are overweight and you want to diet, you might check with your doctor first just to make sure that you're not one of the 5 per cent of people who are overweight for some medical reason. When you get your O.K. from your doctor, get a few of your fatter friends together and start a calorie club.

DON'T TIE YOUR CLUB DOWN with too many rules. It is a good idea, however, to have regular meetings and weighings. In fact, all your club needs is a will and a weigh—the will to reduce and the weigh to check on progress. A good goal for each member would be to lose two pounds a week.

Before you try any kind of dieting at mealtime, try eliminating entirely the between-meal snack. Also put candy and desserts on the forbidden list. By keeping away from these items, you may discover that you are able to lose more than two pounds a week.

Mrs. Lowman will be glad to send you a calorie chart. Write to Josephine Lowman, in care of the Post-Dispatch, and just say “Calorie Chart.” Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

International Pattern

HIGH up in beautiful Mexico City, Lila Bath designs festive party dresses for fine shops throughout this country. In today's dress, she combined the figure-flattering simplicity of the princess silhouette with unusual detail.

The long graceful lines are accented by contrasting braid, hand-stitched over the seams. Coolly sleeveless, the deep V neckline curves away to barely cover the shoulders.

Made in pastel denim with contrasting bias or rickrack trim, or in linen with narrow bands of Irish lace, it will be exactly right for these sultry summer days. And for all the fall and winter parties just around the corner, plan to make it in faille with matching silk braid.

This pattern is cut to designer measurements, not standard pattern measurements.

Chicken Livers

Ingredients: One-half pound onions, one-half pound fresh or frozen chicken livers, four tablespoons butter or margarine, one-half teaspoon soy sauce, one-half cup water, salt and pepper.

Method: Peel onions, cut in quarters and slice into thin strips; there should be one and one-half cups packed down. If frozen chicken livers are used, thaw ahead. Cut any yellow gall spots away from livers; wash and dry. Melt two tablespoons of the butter in 10-inch skillet; add liver and cook quickly, turning, until still slightly pink inside. (Test by cutting through a piece of liver.) Remove liver from skillet; cut small livers in half, large livers in four pieces. Melt remaining two tablespoons butter in same skillet; add onions and stir over moderate heat for several minutes. Cover tightly and cook over very low heat until soft and a pale brown color—about 10 minutes. Remove cover. Add soy sauce and water and bring quickly to a boil, scraping up any browned particles in pan; allow to bubble for a minute or so to reduce liquid slightly. Stir in livers and reheat quickly, adding salt and pepper to taste. Makes two servings.

Consistently Good Veal
By Edith M. Barber

FOR very good reason veal has become a very popular meat item in modern times. Quality is now consistently good. The calves that furnish it are well fed and slaughtered when the meat is at its best. No longer is it of poor quality that once was so common when the baby calf was sent to market a few weeks after its birth. The better grades of veal carry a purple stamp showing that it comes from a Government-inspected plant. Although veal is from the beef animal, the texture and the flavor are quite different. The veal is lacking in fat. For this reason a roast is often covered with thin strips of salt pork or bacon. Sometimes a veal roast is enclosed in a fat covering at the market. Veal needs a long, slow cooking. If the roast has been boned, more time should be allowed. Sometimes a pocket is made in it and this may be filled with stuffing. There is nothing better than a stuffed roast of veal. The breast is a good choice for a small family.

ALL SMALL cuts of veal, such as the chops and the steaks that we usually call cutlet, should be braised after browning. Occasionally the very thin cutlets are cooked very slowly after they are browned, and without a cover. The same method may be used for small pieces of cutlet that are often called "birds." These must, however, be turned very often. The cooking may be finished in the oven, in a covered pan, however.

Our favored scallopini demands veal cutlets and may be cooked in a skillet or in the oven. For many other good veal recipes, any cut of solid veal may be used. For veal paprika a sour cream sauce is used. For "parmigian," the browned cutlets are covered with sliced cheese and put under the broiler until the cheese melts.

Veal Scallopini.
Two pounds veal steak.
Flour.
Salt.
Pepper.
Two tablespoons olive oil.
One clove garlic, peeled.
One-half cup white wine.
One-half cup water.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
Have veal sliced one-fourth inch thick. Wipe meat with cloth and rub with seasoned flour. Heat olive oil in heavy frying pan and saute garlic and veal until light brown. Remove garlic. Add wine, water, and lemon juice, cover and simmer 30 minutes over low heat, until veal is tender. Serve on hot platter and garnish with parsley.

Yield: Six servings.

Veal Paprika.
Two pounds solid veal.
Flour.
Salt.
Pepper.
Two tablespoons butter and bacon fat.
One clove garlic, peeled.
One and one-half cups water.
Three-fourths cup sour cream.
One teaspoon paprika.

Have veal cut in two-inch pieces. Wipe meat with cloth and rub with seasoned flour. Melt butter or bacon fat in heavy kettle. Add garlic and saute three minutes. Add meat and brown lightly on all sides. Add water, cover, and simmer over very low heat about one hour. Remove garlic. Add cream, paprika, and more salt if necessary. Serve on hot platter surrounded by noodles with poppy seeds. Yield: Six servings.

Note: If thicker sauce is desired, stir in two tablespoons softened butter blended with two tablespoons flour, just before cream is added.

Relieves Diaper RASH
No ordinary powder can soothe itchy, stinging skin like Mexsana! Use after every change; antiseptic action helps heal. Eases burn of family's minor rashes, chafe, cool hot, irritated feet. Buy 79¢ size today.

MEXSANA
MEDICATED POWDER
Use Mexsana Skin Cream to smooth and soften detergent hands. Lanolin-rich, gently medicated, use as make-up base, too. 79¢.

Wool Jersey Styles
Wool jersey that is trimmed with grosgrain ribbon introduces an attractive fashion that is practical for vacation wear as well as for early fall use. The jersey is effective for two-piece dresses that have overblouses and slim skirts. The material also is liked for casual suits having slim skirts—and cardigan

A Tip on Pan-Broiling
When you pan-broil meat, be sure to pour off all fat that collects in the skillet. If you don't do this, the meat will fry rather than "broil."
